COREY TO QUIT STEEL TRUST

Latest snapshot of Mabelle Gilman, actress for whom it is now reported W. E. Corey will soon surrender $100,000 presidency of U. S. Steel Trust.

Said President of Great Corporation Will Retire Shortly After Marriage to Mabelle Gilman—Bishop Forbids Ceremony in His Diocese.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 7.—William E. Corey, president of the Steel Trust, will relinquish his $100,000 position, it is declared, very shortly after his marriage to Mabelle Gilman, the actress, which is set for next Monday.

Corey was re-elected as the head of the big corporation only a week ago, but it is said by those who are on the inside that it was with the understanding that he would soon give up the job. According to the story that is going the rounds of Wall street, Corey wanted to be at the head of the concern when he gave his hand and money to the beautiful and fascinating Mabelle.

The extended publicity given to Mr. Corey's personal affairs during the past few years is said to be at the bottom of his alleged contemplated withdrawal from the trust. The same fate befell Charles M. Schwab, Mr. Corey's predecessor in the position.

The rumor of Mr. Corey's retirement was denied at the offices of the Steel Trust, but it was contended that the notoriety attached to his personal affairs has afforded grounds for his resignation.

A man active in the management of the trust was quoted to-day as follows:

Must Observe Propriety.

"When a man occupies a position as prominent as that of president of a great corporation like the steel corporation, of the Pennsylvania Railroad or any similar semi-public position, he is expected to observe the ordinary forms of propriety. What may be said to be purely personal affairs in the case of less conspicuous men cannot be so considered in the case of men holding positions of prominence. They are required, just as public officials are required, to observe in their personal conduct of the standards set by the community at large.

"Mr. Schwab acted very much as if he thought the affairs of the Steel Corporation were his own affairs, with the result that he left the service of the company. Any man who flits such a position and disregards the ordinary standards of propriety is sure, sooner or later, to find his position too uncomfortable to stay in."

Protest by Bishop.

The Right Rev. Frederick Burgess, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Long Island, through his secretary, placed a ban to-day on the contemplated marriage of Corey to Miss Gilman in the cathedral at Garden City. Bishop Burgess made it emphatic that such a marriage could not be solemnized within his diocese, and declared that he doubted if any self-respecting minister would officiate at such a union, where one of the contracting parties had been divorced.

"The wedding of such a couple," read the statement, "would never occur in the cathedral at Garden City, and no clergyman in the Episcopal diocese would perform such a ceremony where one of the parties had been divorced. I doubt very much whether any self-respecting minister could be found in Long Island to marry such a couple."

There is no more bitter opponent of remarriage after divorce than Bishop Burgess. Two years ago at the Episcopalian convention in Garden City he delivered a bitter attack on the divorce laws of different States.

$5,000,000 Cost to Corey.

The management of the Garden City Hotel said yesterday they knew nothing of the engagement of a suite of rooms by Mr. Corey for next week.

The belief is growing that, since Mr. Corey will be unable to marry Miss Gilman at any Episcopal church, he will call in the Rev. Mr. Warren, the hotel chaplain, and that the wedding will take place in Miss Gilman's rooms at the Hotel Gotham on May 13.

The love of the steel magnate for Miss Gilman will cost him approximately $5,000,000 by the time they are married.

It became known yesterday that he has recently presented his mother with $250,000 in bonds of the Steel Trust, and has also handsomely provided for his father. He gave his wife $2,000,000 at the time she obtained her divorce and had given her $1,000,000 previously. He has also made a trust fund of $1,000,000 for his first wife.

Priceless Wedding Gowns.

No more elaborate trousseau was ever brought into this country than that of Miss Gilman. Among her gowns is one costing thousands of dollars. It consists of interchangeable blue and green silk mulle of the palest tints.

The skirt is exquisitely embroidered in blue silk flowers woven together with silver threads. The hat worn by Miss Gilman with this costume sets well back from the forehead, and consists of white straw with silver embroidered ornaments and a sweeping white feather.

Corey Family Reconciled.

There has been a complete reconciliation in the Corey family with the result that A. A. Corey, his wife and his two daughters, Miss Ada Corey and Mrs. Elizabeth S. Riggs of Brooklyn will attend the wedding.

Mrs. Laura Cook Corey, now known as Mrs. Corey No. 1, is reported to be very angry because her former husband has been forgiven by his family. She is now with her sister, Mrs. Henry McCory, in Southern Florida.

The restoration of peace in the Corey family was brought about by Mrs. Riggs, who has always been loyal to her brother. While on a European trip Mrs. Riggs met Miss Gilman and liked her very much. When she returned just before last Christmas she decided to fix up the family troubles.

With this end in view the elder Mr. Corey was induced to spend the holiday at her daughter's Brooklyn home.

"OBEY THE LAW," SAYS THE TEAMSTERS' UNION

LABOR MANDATE FOLLOWS THE INJUNCTION GRANTED BY COURT.

"Obey the law," was the order that went forth from the headquarters of the Team Drivers' Union today, in view of the fact that the temporary injunction announced yesterday by Judge Loring is to all intents and purposes in force to-day although the writ will not be issued until to-morrow.

The executive board of Local No. 25 gave out this statement to-day:

"We have always notified our members not to break the law. That is all we can do now. We thought we were doing the community a benefit by sending these strike-breakers out of the city. It will be up to the police authorities now to rid the city of them. The Master Teamsters cannot run their teams without experienced men. No matter how long the strike continues none of our members will seek employment from any of these 'struck' firms until such times as they grant our requests."

Secure New Positions.

At a meeting of the strikers held in Brodhine Hall to-day, the officers addressed them with additional pleas to keep out of trouble. "Obey the law in every detail," was the command.

Out of the 416 men who went out on strike when it was ordered there are now only 300 who are receiving strike benefits, the others having secured positions with union firms who have signed the agreement. The benefits were paid to-day, $8 to married men and $7 to single men.

As the injunction stands, the members of Local No. 25 are enjoined as a union, but not as individuals, from doing these things:

Expending their own funds or any funds for the purpose of paying fares of men employed by the Master Teamsters back to New York or elsewhere, or for paying them to break their contracts.

To Safeguard Teams.

From inciting to assault.

From cutting harnesses or ropes on teams of the petitioners for the injunction.

From taunting persons on the streets.

The union is not enjoined against:

Peaceably discussing the strike issue with the non-union employes of the plaintiffs.

Peaceful picketing in vicinity of the plaintiff's places of business.

Only Local No. 25 is named in the Judge's announcement, although the petitioners asked that there also be enjoined all members of Coal Teamsters' Local No. 8, Teamsters and Helpers' Association No. 242, Tipcart Drivers' Local No. 181, Piano Movers' Union No. 348 and Market and Commercial House Teamsters' Local No. 61.

In his order, Judge Loring declares that the union teamsters are not justified in their efforts to induce men to leave their employments. He declares that "this is not a case of conspiracy," but continues that "the defendants say they have in their constitution rules to punish men who should go outside the law, but that they have never excluded or disciplined men because they have done so."

"Each Have Equal Rights."

The Supreme Court was crowded when the decision was given. Both the master teamsters and the strikers were represented by counsel.

Judge Loring said, in part: "Every man has a right to work or not. Just as he sees fit; and when a strike is called all that is meant is that a body of men have preferred not to work. That's all it means.

"But the persons against whom the strike is made have the right to hire other persons to work, and any other man has a right to engage to do that work which the others do not care to do.

"The men who do not care to work are entitled to protection, and the men against whom the strike is made and those who care to work for them are entitled to the same protection. Each have equal rights.

"Two Defences Offered."

"Now what is the result when a strike takes place. Those against whom the strike is made have the right to employ other men, and their men are entitled to protection, and the strikers who have any regard for the law will recognize these rights. If they really did so we should have no such cases as I am now trying.

"Mr. Mandell admits that there is a strike, and in his argument he has made two points, two defences. He said that so far as interference with the men who had taken the places of the strikers is concerned it had not been shown that they were the defendants, and in the second place he contended that the defendants had a right to endeavor to induce the men who had taken their places to break their contracts.

"Not a Conspiracy."

"This is not a case of conspiracy. There are many things which individuals may be able to do which a larger body cannot do.

"This brings me to the second question, whether I should issue a temporary injunction based on the assault made in this case while the hearing was in progress, or on the fact that there was cutting of harness and of ropes and the driving of men from their teams, leaving the teams unprotected.

"With respect to that there would not be the necessity of the same proof as in a criminal case. But this strike is not being conducted properly. The circumstances are not what they ought to be. A strike if carried out with proper respect for all parties would be lawful. But the circumstances of this strike are not thus carried out. The circumstances are not what they should be.

Enjoins Only Members.

"I cannot do less than grant a temporary injunction against the union.

shall not, however, grant an injunction against the officers of local No. 25, but against the members of that union. I do not enjoin any individual member.

"You can go to any court member who are found to be breaking the injunction. You do not have to bring into court all the members, but only those members who are doing these things.

"Mr. Feeley, you must amend your motion. There is no joint bill. These men are not all to be enjoined in your particulars. On your amended your bill will issue the injunction, but not until you do that.

"There is another matter that I might discuss. Several men say that they were employed by some one else besides these petitioners. I don't see how they can be included in this bill. That may be brought up at some future time."

NO SLEEP FOR WEEKS

Was the experience of C. Rowland, 19 Bowdoin St., Charlestown, until he applied Hiscox's Liniment, which speedily cured his rheumatism.—Adv.

FOUR DEAD, MANY HURT IN WRECK

WHEELING, W. Va., May 7.—Four were killed and eight persons badly injured in the wreck of the New York and Chicago express on the Baltimore & Ohio, which collided with a freight early to-day at Roby's Rock, twenty miles east of here. The wreck was caused by a heavy fog, the engineer of the passenger train being unable to see the flag the other train had out.

The killed:

CHRIS A. WERNER, twenty-five years, baggage master of the passenger train.

W. T. THOMAS, Wheeling, fireman on the freight.

J. L. PAENTER, express messenger on the passenger.

CHARLES CHRISTY, fireman on the passenger.

Th injured:

W. W. RILEY, Wheeling, engineer on the passenger; condition serious.

M. L. PARKINS, fireman on the freight; condition serious.

H. A. HILL, messenger on the passenger.

MISS SARAH E. SIMMERS, New Jersey, slightly cut about the head and upper part of the body.

MISS MOLLIE HILL, New Jersey.

C. H. STEIN of the superintendent's staff.

CHARLES SCALPELL.

C. GILLESPIE, Washington, D. C.

All injured are expected to recover. In addition to these practically every passenger on No. 7 was slightly hurt.

The freight crew received orders at Roby's Rock to take the siding to allow the passenger to pass. The freight was pulling into the switch and had a flagman out, when the passenger train came thundering along. Because of the fog the engineer of the passenger train was unable to see the flagman, and he crashed into the freight.

Both engines were smashed to pieces and all of the passenger cars were overturned.

CHASE GROWS HOT UNDER A WARRANT FOR REV. JERE COOKE AND HIS GIRL DUPE.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 7.—A sentence of ten years in jail is the fate that looms up before the Rev. Jere Rhode Cooke, the preacher who ran away with the seventeen-year-old Floretta Whaley of Hempstead, L. I. The authorities of Nassau county to-day put detectives on the preacher's trail, and declared that when caught he would be sternly prosecuted on a charge of abduction.

District Attorney Coles to-day took up the case in grim earnest when it became a settled fact that the officials of St. George's parish, where the Rev. Mr. Cooke had been rector, had decided finally not to make any attempt to find the fugitive.

A clew led to Boston, where it was thought the guilty pair were trying to get a ship to flee abroad.

The action of the church authorities suddenly assumed considerable anxiety to the people of Hempstead, who are still at high tension over the sensational elopement.

Wife Refuses to Get Warrant.

The officials definitely refused to bear any part whatever in the expenses of the search for the recreant preacher, while, coincidentally, Mrs. Cooke refused to swear out a warrant for her husband's arrest on the ground of abandonment.

"Every effort is now being made to effect the arrest of the eloping rector," said District Attorney Coles today. "We have detectives now employed, and several clews are already being investigated that may lead to his early arrest.

"If Cooke is apprehended outside the boundaries of this state or abroad extradition proceeding will at once be begun and on his enforced return to Nassau county he will be tried on an abduction charge.

"The District Attorney's office will prosecute the case vigorously, and no influence can prevent his being brought to trial in the proper manner.

"I can state positively that in his letter to Bishop Burgess no mention was made by Cooke of any members of his parish. The letter simply stated that he had decided to be unfrocked, as he had decided to enter into some other line of endeavor."

It was stated to-day by Assistant District Attorney Bennett that the information given the District Attorney's office by Assistant Belmont and his fellow-parishioners that they would stand all expenses of the hunt for Cooke had been broken, and that the county would go right ahead without them.

Mrs. Cooke was severely criticised to-day by Mrs. Katie Whaley, the aged grandmother of Floretta.

"If Mrs. Cooke knew of the infatuation of her husband for poor little Floretta," said the aged woman, "she should have come and warned me. Why did Mrs. Cooke ask Floretta to visit at her home when she felt that her husband was falling in love with my grand-daughter?

"It that wicked minister thought he was carrying off an heiress, he is greatly mistaken. Floretta will come into a considerable fortune some day, but the money is held in trust by me, and will not revert to her until my death.

"I will freely forgive Floretta if she will only return home, but I have only hatred in my heart for the wicked man who has ensnared her innocent young girlhood.

"I have every intention of appearing against the monster when he is arrested, and I hope that my testimony as chief complainant will send him to the penitentiary, where he belongs."

While detectives are searching for Cooke his beautiful young wife lies prostrated in the rectory at Hempstead.

"Not a Good Man Gone Wrong"

His is not the case of a good man gone wrong, but of a bad man found out. . . . Earthly justice should pursue him till it leaves him behind prison bars, where he should have been long ago.

—THE REV. MADISON C. PETERS.

POLICE HOT ON TRACK OF BOLD ROBBERS

The chase is hot to-day by the Dorchester police for the two masked and armed burglars who aroused Mrs. Flora M. Norton, No. 97 Esmond street, from sleep with a cry of fire, and, holding her up at revolver point, ordered her to give up her diamonds.

Amateurs, the police say, did the work, and confidence is expressed that the men will soon be caught.

Mrs. Norton, in great alarm for the supposed danger of fire, heard the men shout: "Get out of this house and save your life. The next house is on fire!"

She opened the door and looked into the muzzles of two revolvers held by the men. The wore handkerchiefs as masks.

"We want your diamonds," demanded the men; "show us where they are or we'll kill you."

In the meantime, Charles de Lasko, son of Alexander de Lasko, the Boston flower dealer, to whom Mrs. Norton is engaged to be married, had been awakened by the actions of the intruders. Dressing hastily and sneaking down stairs to listen, he had readily understood that burglars were in the house.

Retracing his way upstairs and entering his room, locking the door behind, "to make sure that the bad men couldn't get him," as he told a reporter, "there was soon half way out of the window, calling lustily for help.

The burglars heeded the warning and left quickly by a side entrance.

On trying to notify the police by telephone it was learned that the wires had been cut. They left no clue as to their identity, and as far as could be ascertained got no booty.

Blood-Cleansing Spring Tonic.

Doctors Strongly Advise That a Tonic Be Taken This Month to Enrich the Blood and Bring Fresh Vigor and Life to the Entire Body.

If your system is in need of a blood-cleansing tonic that will start the whole machinery of the human frame running smoothly and naturally, it is your evident duty to seek out and find some well-tried, approved and safe remedy that will do the work of cleansing the blood and building up the tissue without at the same time leaving any injurious effects.

Thousands of physicians prescribe and indorse Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as an ideal Spring medicine, one that does its work effectively in purifying the blood, in strengthening the heart action, in aiding digestion and in adding fresh vigor and life to the entire body.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is distilled wholly from malted grain by a most expensive method which has never been made public and this private process is jealously guarded in favor, its age, softness, palatability and freedom from those injurious substances found in other whiskies make it acceptable to the most sensitive stomach. It is the only whiskey recognized as a medicine.

'SANCTITY OF HOME MUST BE PROTECTED'

By Madison C. Peters.

New York, May 4.—The greatness, the glory and the prestige of this mighty Republic of ours was built upon the foundation stones of the sanctity of the American home and the purity of American women, and these were planted deep and strong by the men who placed the flag of freedom on the ramparts of our nation; but from time to time men have arisen who would undo the holy work by undermining those foundations, so that the structure of nationhood would topple and fall.

Degradation of woman's virtue in any country paves the way for ruin and extinction. Rome once laid claim to the proud title of "mistress of the world," and her prowess was supreme on land and sea.

She produced a nation of heroes and men-gods, who bore her conquering arms in triumph from the shores of the Caspian to the pillars of Hercules, and from the white cliffs of Albion to the dark cedars of Algiers, none could withstand their victorious march, and everywhere success was inscribed upon their banners. To what did Rome owe her greatness and her power? To the purity of her living. The virgin chastity of her daughters was the most sacred trust the nation had to guard, and it was guarded well.

As long as the virtue of womanhood was treasured as the most sacred of all possessions, Rome flourished, but just as soon as her bloated tyrant kings began to inflame her passions by gluttony and debauchery, in time of peace, the laurel wreaths began to wither on her brow.

Two Priestly Offenders.

Within a month the Church in America has been scandalized in our city by two clergymen, and to illuminate their offences excuses have been set up for both. Of course, we always try to throw the mantle of charity over the Church and fondly clasp the belief to our bosoms that she can do no wrong. One of these clergymen (?) was caught by a detective in a house of questionable character, and the excuse was set up that he was gathering material for sermons. Queer place to gather!

The other has just run away with the protege bequeathed to his care by a dying father, and the defence set up for him is insanity. Has he been insane during the past five years in which time he was drawing a large salary from a fashionable church and maturing his nefarious schemes and designs which have now culminated not since in an infringement of the laws of God, but those of man as well?

This man Cooke, who has so grossly betrayed his sacred office, should not be left for Divine justice to overtake him, as it will in the end, but earthly justice should pursue him until it leaves him behind prison bars, where he should have been long ago with many others of his class. He has broken the laws of the land, why should he not be punished? His is not the case of a good man gone wrong, but a bad man found out.

The Master said to his apostles, "Feed my lambs, feed my sheep." Mr. Cooke was feeding the lambs well, especially Miss Whaley. Little more than a child in years, this man, who is wise her age, had an easy task, playing upon the feelings of the unsophisticated, inexperienced girl. No excuse can be offered for him, as every fact points to his guilt and condemnation. This young girl was left to his keeping by a dying father, who cheerfully consigned little Floretta upon the shoulders of a man whom he looked upon as a father in God, who would take the place of her father she was about to lose, who would counsel and advise her and bring her up in the path of virtue and honor.

How He Keeps His Trust.

How well Mr. Cooke had kept his trust has been revealed.

"As you will with my children deal, "So God will you requite."

said the dying parent in that ballad of "The Babes in the Wood" to the uncle, who afterward had the two orphans murdered that the fortune was going to them. God certainly did requite the treacherous uncle.

How will it be with the conscience of Mr. Cooke in the hereafter when he realizes the enormity of his crime?

There is no excuse, no possible exception of the medical, which has greater temptation to fall from the heights of virtue than the ministerial. The minister comes into close contact with the family. He visits the members in sickness, he marries and he buries them and by a hundred other ties he is connected with them. Time was when the minister had the open sesame to all circles at all hours.

He was looked upon as the friend of God and regarded as the ambassador from the court of Heaven to that of earth, mediating with the Father for his erring, sinful children, so that his coming was welcomed. But in recent years too many ministers have abused their privileges. They lost the reverence and respect once accorded them and, instead of being welcomed they are frequently viewed with suspicion.

SENIORS WIN SCHOOL FIGHT

MELROSE, May 7.—The trouble over the class day exercises between the graduating class of the high school and the school committee has been amicably settled at a conference between the committee and a delegation from the class.

A few weeks ago the school committee voted to dispense with class day exercises with the proviso that they be merged with the graduating exercises. This was unsatisfactory to the seniors, who voted to have class day exercises as usual independent of the committee.

What promises to be the finest list of athletic events yet held by a religious organization will take place at New Dewey Landing, North Weymouth, Monday, June 17, when the annual picnic and field day of St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Literary Society will be held. The games will be under the supervision of the New England Amateur Athletic Association, sanction having been secured. All entries should be made with John F. PAWTUCKET, R. I., May 7.—The 1,300 employes at J. & P. Coats Thread Company, Limited, who had been for a week on a strike for an increase in wages of 10 per cent, by 500 of the carders at the mills, returned to work this morning.

The strike to the effect that the increase demanded would be granted was posted in the mills yesterday afternoon, it being understood that this course was the result of cablegrams from the directors in Scotland.

SNAPSHOT MAN AWARDS $80 TO THE LUCKY ONES

Two of This Week's Sunday Prize Groups Yet Unidentified---Watch for the Camera.

The BOSTON AMERICAN "Snapshot Man" certainly is making a tremendous hit.

He took several pictures of people along Washington street Friday. He published ten of those pictures Sunday. Yesterday many people came in to claim the ten dollar prizes that go with each picture when the original of the picture appears.

Eight of these claimants were genuine originals. They promptly received their ten dollars apiece, making eighty dollars that the "Snapshot Man" paid out the first day after he published his photographs.

The other claimants thought they were originals, too. But they were near-ones, so to speak.

Identified Ones.

Two pictures still remain unidentified. Who are they?

The eight identified are:

No. 2—Charles Crawford, No. 158 Walnut street, Neponset.

No. 3—Mrs. Josephine Brown, No. 244 Dorchester street, South Boston.

No. 4—Miss Rose Hurvitch, No. 90 Northampton street.

No. 5—Miss Ida M. Holbrook, No. 7 Charles street, Boston.

No. 6—Mrs. Elizabeth O'Brien, No. 691 Albany street, Boston.

No. 7—Mrs. Walton White and six months old baby of No. 3 Hudson street, South End.

No. 8—Miss Ida Moretsky, No. 92 Castle street, South End.

No. 9—Miss Celia Lewis, No. 39 Village street, South End.

Number one and number ten are still unidentified, although several thought they were number one. Ten dollars each await the veiled young woman crossing the street, and the elderly woman presumably on a shopping tour. If they come and see the "Snapshot Man" of the BOSTON AMERICAN he has $2 Summer street.

Surprised to See Pictures.

The first to be identified were Misses Moretsky and Lewis. They said that they were on their way to luncheon on Friday. They saw the "snapshot man," but did not think he was going to take them. Both are subscribers to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. They, with many of their friends, quickly picked themselves out.

A number of men, all wearing light overcoats, thought themselves Mr. Crawford. He was positively identified by the sleeve of his undercoat projecting from his top coat, by his tie, collar and general build.

Allen B. Carter, a contractor and builder in the Board of Trade building, was sure it was himself. "I know it is I," he said. "If there is another fellow looks like that I would like to see him." He had only to glance around and see three of his doubles. H. M. Safford of No. 6 Beacon street was a good likeness, but he also lacked some of the qualifications to make the identification complete.

Mr. Crawford said: "I was out to lunch Friday, standing at Essex and Washington streets, ordering a taxicab, when I saw the photographer, but did not think he was snapping me."

Friends Recognized Her.

Mrs. Josephine Brown was on her way to dinner. She did not see the "Snapshot man."

Miss Ida M. Holbrook was on Washington street shortly after noon Friday. She had not seen the photographer, and did not know her picture was in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN until friends called her up on the telephone Sunday afternoon.

Miss Hurvitch and Miss O'Brien were both on their way to lunch when the "Snapshot man" got them.

Mrs. Walton White, with her husband and with their baby in the go-cart, which appeared in the "Snapshot Man" picture at the BOSTON AMERICAN office all smiles. Her identity could not be disputed. She said: "I was coming out of a store having just purchased this go-cart for baby. Why the price of $10 I can more than pay for my guess!"

The "Snapshot Man" is not through. He is going out again this week. He is going to get ten more photographs which he will publish in next Sunday's issue of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

He will announce during the week in the columns of the BOSTON AMERICAN something about his next appearance.

You may be "snapped" $10 worth if he sees you.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing backache, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

I'M STILL LOYAL TO MRS. EDDY

—MRS. STETSON,

New York Christian Science Leader Brands Conspiracy Story as a Falsehood.

RUMOR IS SET AT REST

An article was published in New York yesterday purporting to describe an effort on the part of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, the head of the Christian Science movement in New York City, to usurp the place of Mrs. Eddy, the leader of Christian Science throughout the world.

Professor Hering wrote a letter which pretended to describe the effort of Mrs. Stetson to get control of the Christian Science organization and to take Mrs. Eddy's place.

Made Conspiracy Charges.

Charges of conspiracy were made in detail. The BOSTON AMERICAN publishes at the request of the Christian Science publication committee the following communication:

"New York, May 6.

"The letter published in the World this morning, purporting to have been written by Professor Hering to Mr. H. Cornell Wilson, if Professor Hering wrote the letter he will doubtless be able to explain his reference to Mr. Frye and others.

"It is not true that Mrs. Stetson is in a conspiracy with the members of Mrs. Eddy's household or with anyone else to succeed Mrs. Eddy. Such statements have been repeated from time to time for the past ten years. Mrs. Stetson has herself denied this so many times through the press that it seems unnecessary for her to say anything further about it.

"Mrs. Eddy's Devoted Follower."

"As a matter of fact, Mrs. Eddy has no more devoted or loyal follower than Mrs. Stetson. Twenty years ago Mrs. Eddy sent Mrs. Stetson to New York to help establish Christian Science in this city, and during all these years she has worked heart and hand with Mrs. Eddy and has ever been guided by her.

"Mrs. Stetson is fully convinced that Mrs. Eddy is perfectly competent mentally and physically and that the attempt to make the public believe to the contrary is cruel and unjust."

LASHES DOCTOR IN FIGHT FOR CHASE WEALTH

Attorney Storey Cries "Fraud" in Bitter Contest Over the Will.

CASE GOES TO JURY TO-DAY

Moorfield Storey, counsel for the members of the wealthy Phillips family who are fighting the will of their sister, Mrs. Jennie Chase Phillips, in which she left almost a million to the late Woodruff Chase, her adopted son and son of her husband, Dr. Horace Chase, who is now the heir to the fortune, began his address to the jury in the court at Salem to-day.

It is probable the case goes to the jury to-day.

Mr. Storey vigorously lashed Dr. Chase. He said:

"The Phillips family is not here for any sordid reason. I verily believe that Dr. Chase deliberately married their sister for her money. He has no right to the money and sought to obtain it by methods that are fraudulent. Even though the Phillips family were as rich as Andrew Carnegie, if they had any red blood in them they would attempt to prevent a successful consummation of this conspiracy.

Honor Never Before Assailed.

Leonard H. Phillips is a simple, straight forward, honest New Englander who has been accused by Mr. Morse of being a liar on the witness stand. In all his life and business dealings in Swampscott never a word against his honor or veracity was ever spoken before.

For the purpose of acquiring this money Dr. Chase sought to marry Miss Phillips. By threats he forced her to adopt Woodruff Chase. Finally worn out and exhausted by Dr. Chase, she took her own life.

"Jennie was the youngest member of the Phillips family of eight children. She and once before been married (or her money). It is a curious coincidence that her power of will lasted only three months in both her first and second marriages. In her first marriage, three months after the ceremony, she ceded all her property to her first husband. In her second marriage she adopted this son three months after the marriage and made him her only heir.

"The character of Dr. Chase is shown by his statement, as follows: 'I always considered a locket shop an ideal place to be in.' He got his living by betting on the race tracks and in locket shops.

Remarkable Lack of Memory.

"It has been said that Dr. Chase is the mental superior of any member of the Phillips family. Dr. Chase isn't to be named in the same day as the Phillips family as regards character.

"Upon the witness stand Dr. Chase showed a remarkable lack of memory. The barren memory of this man is the index of a barren heart. What do you think of a man who goes to the house of people he does not like and has no sympathy for, and accepts their hospitality? He never knew although they were distasteful to them because he had an object in view."

MYSTERIOUS ATTACKS ALARM BEACON HILL

Residents of Beacon Hill, particularly along Chestnut street, have been thrown into a state of terror because of the frequency of mysterious attacks that have been made on various houses within the last few days and the narrow escapes that some have had from serious injury.

The police are investigating at least three known specific cases with a view to putting a stop to this manifestation of viciousness and calming the ruffled tempers of the dwellers of that aristocratic section.

Scare in Girls' School.

The latest scare was in the private school for girls conducted by Miss Delafield at No. 46 Chestnut street. Twenty of the girls were seated about a table at ten when they were shocked by a stone that was hurled through an open window. The score of girls fled from the room while their shrieks aroused the neighborhood.

The police were notified and their efforts were renewed to clear the mystery.

This strange epidemic first showed itself on Friday night when a toilet was fired through a window near which Miss Mary H. Whitwell was sitting at No. 68 Chestnut street.

Miss Whitwell, who is an aged woman and a member of one of Boston's oldest families, thought at first that her life had been attempted and so told the police. Later she felt that as she was in the apartment of another tenant of the building at the time and the miscreant could not have known it, that she was not particularly picked out as a victim.

Stone Through Atkinson Window.

Following this incident a stone was thrown through a window in the home of Charles Atkinson, of No. 38 Chestnut street.

Miss Delafield, who conducts the girls' school, said to-day:

"I have no idea where the stone came from. Twenty of my girls were at high tea. None was hurt. The window was not broken, because it was open. The practice is dangerous and should be stopped at once."

ELLEN TERRY, THRICE WED, YOUNG AT 59

"She'll Never Grow Old," Avers Her Leading Man, Whom She Secretly Married.

KNOT TIED BY REPORTER

Bostonians learned two interesting secrets to-day.

One includes the details of the wedding of Miss Ellen Terry, whose real name was Ellen Alice Wardwell, to her leading man, James Carew, in Pittsburg.

The other is "How Old is Ellen?" The answer to that, by her own auto-biblal declaration, is fifty-nine years. But Carew says "She will never grow old."

It also develops with this story to-day that Miss Terry, or Mrs. Carew as she is now, can really keep a secret, if she is a woman. For she kept the news of her marriage quiet till now, though the ceremony took place on March 22.

Miss Terry sailed from New York for London last Saturday on the Minnetonka. She was asked by wireless if the report of her marriage was true. By wireless she answered back, "Please ask Mr. Carew at No. 238 West Thirty-sixth street, New York."

Young Though 59.

Mr. Carew admitted it. He is going abroad to join his bride. He summed up his love for her in a paragraph:

"Ellen Terry, with that wonderful soul and artistic temperament, will never grow old. She is my senior by a good many years, but I can think of her only as a young and charming woman."

Cable dispatches to-day from London say that even her own brother, Fred Terry, was surprised on being told the news.

This is the tragedienne's third marriage. She was married when a young girl to George Frederick Watts, the artist, from whom she obtained a divorce. Her second marriage was to Arthur Wardell, an actor, who died soon afterwards.

Her Third Venture.

Miss Terry and Mr. Carew were married on March 22 in Pittsburg by George J. Campbell, a courthouse reporter, who is also a justice of the peace. Mr. Bell fixed matters so the happy couple could get their license after the office of the marriage license clerk had closed for the day, thus keeping their name from the eyes of the newspaper men.

Fortified by a new $100 hat, which she had purchased in honor of her wedding day, Miss Terry went with Carew, Attorney R. H. Thompson and James R. Bell to the license clerk. Carew said he was an actor, thirty-one years old, a bachelor, a native of Goshen, Ind., and a resident of New York city.

"Miss Terry, were you ever married before?" the clerk asked.

"Yes."

"And how many times?" pursued the clerk.

"Well," answered she, "I have been married twice. My second husband died. His name was Charles Wardell. My real name is Ellen Alice Wardell. Now, please don't ask me any more."

"How Old? Oh, My!"

"Just a little more. What became of your first husband?"

I divorced him. You see, I was married very young. That marriage was unhappy and was a great mistake."

"Just one more," continued the clerk, persistently, "how old are you?"

"Oh, my!" ejaculated Miss Terry. "Well, I am fifty-nine years old. But, for goodness sake, don't tell my age."

AUTO VICTIM DIES; COURT HOLDS DEALER

Warren M. Batchelder of No. 264 Putnam avenue, Cambridgeport, who was run down by an automobile at 1 o'clock yesterday morning at the corner of Putnam and Western avenues, Cambridge, died from a triple fracture of the skull at 9:35 a. m. to-day at the Cambridge Relief Hospital, having been unconscious most of the time since the accident.

George M. Weatherbee, who, it is charged, drove the car, was before Judge Almy in the third district court at Cambridge to-day on a charge of manslaughter, the case being continued one week, with $1,000 bail. The police will now ask that the charge be changed to murder.

Weatherbee is a member of the Boston automobile firm of Weatherbee & Sparrow, No. 137 Berkeley street, Boston. It is charged that he ran down Batchelder at the corner of Putnam and Western avenues the injured man being thrown over twenty feet, and that the defendant then put on full speed and fled in his car.

The identity of the chauffeur was a mystery for many hours, but Weatherbee was arrested late yesterday in Boston after an investigation by Inspector Nealon and Patrolmen Hine and Gilroy of Cambridge.

He was lodged in the evening by the sister, Mrs. Alice Rosin of Corwin street, Ashmont.

The victim of the accident was twenty-five years old. Weatherbee is twenty-eight. The latter lives at No. 52 Chester avenue, Wollaston.

Medical Examiner Swan and Dr. Thomas M. Durell of Somerville perform an autopsy to-day. Batchelder's undertaking rooms, Cambridge.

CONWAY BILL PASSES SENATE

Amended in such a manner as to provide that the street railway company shall never consolidate with or buy another, the bill allowing the Fitchburg (Boston & Maine) Railroad to buy the Conway Electric Railway Company, of Conway, in Franklin County, has been passed by the Senate and sent to the House for concurrence in the amendment.

Not a voice was raised against the bill in the Senate. Nothing was said about the proposition involving a "merger" of steam railroads and electric railways. Senator MacLeod of Cambridge offered the amendment.

WOMAN WINS FIRST ORATORIAL PRIZE

CHICAGO, May 7.—Miss Harriet Grimm of the University of Chicago won the first prize of $100 last night in the second annual contest of the Central Oratorial League held at Mandel Hall. She was the only woman representative. James Findlay of the University of Virginia won second prize of $50, and Alfred F. Hughes of Ohio Wesleyan University took third prize.

"ELLEN TERRY WILL NEVER GROW OLD."

In these enthusiastic words, James Carew, the new husband of the famous actress, and her leading man, compliments his bride. The picture shows them in a scene in "Captain Brassbound's Conversion," in which they appeared in Boston, at that time already secretly married.

MASKED MEN HOLD UP TRAIN; KILL ENGINEER

By Boston American Leased Wire.

BUTTE, Mont., May 7.—Masked men early to-day held up the North Coast Limited on the Northern Pacific at Walsh's spur, fifteen miles east of here. The robbers ordered the engineer to detach the express car and go ahead with it, but before the car could be uncoupled one of the men fired, killing the engineer. After killing the engineer the bandits disappeared in the mountains.

The North Coast Limited usually carries large consignments of currency for western banks.

A sheriff's posse, with bloodhounds from the penitentiary, has gone to the scene.

Two years ago the Burlington flyer was held up near there.

GIVEN PURSE OF GOLD BY OFFICE ASSOCIATES

A very pleasant event took place in the office of C. P. King, the well-known financial agent in the Journal building, yesterday, when Miss Alice M. Keith of North Easton, one of the stenographers, who for nineteen years has served Mr. King in that position, was presented with a purse of $100 in gold by the office force as a mark of appreciation of her good fellowship. Mr. J. F. Plaisted, cashier for Mr. C. P. King, made an appropriate presentation address in behalf of his associates. Miss Keith responded in true womanly fashion with an outburst of tears.

The presentation to Miss Keith was a graceful tribute to her faithful service and sympathizable disposition.

FILES $25,000 SUIT AGAINST MISS HOWLAND

Declaring that Miss Florence B. Howland of No. 320 Commonwealth avenue, daughter of the former millionaire president of the Walter Baker Chocolate Company, stole away her husband's affection, Mrs. Grace Jacobs of Revere has filed papers in a $25,000 alienation of affections suit against Miss Howland.

That there was any alienation of affections is denied by the husband, Vaner Jacobs, formerly a chauffeur in the employ of the Howlands and now an automobile dealer, and by Miss Howland.

Charges Love Making in Maine.

According to the declaration filed by Mrs. Jacobs, who is connected with one of the most prominent families of Revere, she suspected that love existed between Miss Howland and her husband soon after the Howlands and Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs returned from the Howland country place in Maine, where Jacobs went as chauffeur for the Howland family.

"Our courtship and marriage were quite like that of thousands of other young people who are happy and prosperous," said Mrs. Jacobs to a reporter. "Now it has been steeped in bitterness and will end in lifelong separation."

Mrs. Jacobs alleges that she saw her husband tenderly embracing Miss Howland on the piazza of the Howland home, and that she saw many other things which convinced her that he was unfaithful to his marriage vows.

Finally Mrs. Jacobs says, she separated from her husband, but friends induced her to return to him. Within a few weeks she does she saw more evidences of intimacy between him and Miss Howland and left him forever.

Theiss Howland has deprived her of comfortsociety and assistance of her husband and has spent money for his pleasure, benefit, pleasure, is alleged by Mrs. Jacobs, the declaration she has filed.

Mishwinland has thirty days in which to file answer to the suit.

ORCHARD ONE OF FIRST BEFORE HAYWOOD JURY

Acknowledged Perjurer and Slayer to Repeat "Confession" Easily.

HIS RECORD TO BE BARED

BOISE, Idaho, May 7.—Realizing that its strongest witness is a self-confessed perjurer and murderer, and that it will be a difficult task to convince the jury his evidence is worthy of credence, attorneys for the State in the Haywood trial will establish a new precedent in a major criminal action, by calling him as one of its first witnesses.

Ordinarily a witness of this magnitude would be reserved for the last hours, but Messrs. Hawley and Borah, for the prosecution, have decided it will be necessary to have much corroborative evidence to have Harry Orchard's story carry weight, so he will early repeat his "confession." Then other witnesses following are expected to show that Orchard's avowers to be so.

To Show Orchard Untruthful.

The defence will have many witnesses, including boy and early manhood friends of Orchard, on hand to impeach his credibility as a competent witness.

They, it is averred will swear that from boyhood Orchard always was noted for untruthfulness. As Orchard says, he planted the bomb which killed Steunenberg and although he was said to do it by Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, it will be seen readily that the acceptance or rejection of his story will be a chief factor in the present trial.

At 10 a. m. to-morrow Judge Wood is expected to hand down his decision denying the application for a bill of particulars in the case of Haywood and the famous trial then will proceed the morning.

Task of Naming Jury.

Although the city is quiet, a declaration in open court by the State's attorneys that witnesses are being tampered with has aroused considerable resentment and may have an influence on the securing of a jury which already is acknowledged to be a lengthy task. As only about 1,000 men are available in Ada county for jury duty, the sensational statements about the cases which are given local publicity will tend to form an opinion to disqualify jurors.

Attorneys and friends of the defendants are not pleased with the charges of Senator Borah and his associates. They declare it is part of a well formed plan to convince the people of the country that Haywood and mates will be convicted owing to improper methods to clear the accused.

Counsel for the defense insisted all that the side wants or desires is complete justice, and this, it is openly avowed, will be had when Haywood and Pettibone when the trial opens Thursday the work of selecting a jury will begin at once. But twenty veniremen are on the panel, and these probably will be examined in the order their names appear on the list drawn until finally all twelve seats are occupied.

Reunion of Child and Parents Only Gained After Overcoming Many Obstacles.

A ten-year-old girl, one of the prettiest that has passed through the immigration office in many months, went through Boston to-day on her way from Liverpool to Springfield, a journey which she is making alone.

Rachel Hurwitz is the girl who has crossed the ocean to be with her father, her mother and her brothers and sisters.

Three months ago she left her home in Ragele, in the State of Kovno, in Russia.

Her father had preceded her to the United States by four years.

Detained in Liverpool.

When the little girl got to Liverpool she was detained by the inspectors, who said that her eyes were weak and that she would not be permitted to go on to the United States.

For eleven weeks she stayed in Liverpool, never losing courage or giving up her hope that she would be permitted to resume her journey.

Just before the Arabic sailed from Liverpool, week before last, the girl was permitted to go aboard.

Joins Father To-day.

She made the trip alone, and to-day in Springfield she will join her father, Isaac Hurwitz, who lives at No. 76 Ferry street in that city.

Upon her arrival in Boston the little girl was taken in charge by Jacob Poinkin, representative of the Hebrew Immigration Aid Society, who saw that she got started for Springfield.

The child speaks no English, and it would take an expert acuilet to find that there is anything the matter with her eyes. To the layman they look like a pair of the brightest eyes in the world.

Purity is Supreme

The materials we use are the best we can buy.
And a partner in our business selects them.

The goodness of Schlitz is due largely to them.

But the supremacy of Schlitz as a home beer has been gained by the fact of its absolute purity.

Purity is not so conspicuous as some qualities in beer, yet it is very expensive. That is why it is rare.

But what does it matter how good a beer is if it is not a pure beer? If its use is unhealthful? If its result is biliousness?

Ask for the Brewery Bottling.
Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz.
To avoid being imposed upon, see that the cork or crown is branded

Schlitz beer is known as the pure beer the world over.

HOUR TO NEW YORK, BOYNTON TELLS HEARERS

Bicycle Railway Inventor in Plea for Justice Raps Railroad Lobby.

AUDIENCE STANDS BY HIM

Declaring that his bicycle railway project had been admitted by many expert electricians and other mechanicians to be a practicable invention, E. Moody Boynton of Haverhill last night addressed a crowd in Faneuil Hall in the interest of "quick, simple and safe transit for Greater Boston."

The aged inventor of the railway which, he shows, would make it possible to cross the continent in a single day, made a pathetic plea for justice to the people whose representatives in the Senate had only yesterday killed his bill, already passed by the House, by amending it to call for a "standard gauge." The very principle of the bicycle road lies in the use of a single track.

Mr. Boynton repeated his charge, made frequently in past years, in which he has fought for his rights, that the all-powerful railroad lobby has defeated him. He declares that the railroads are afraid of the competition which would result.

Puts Question to Audience.

The speaker asked his audience to say whether the Legislature should pass the railway bill, and the response was unanimously in his favor. Mr. Boynton enumerated the obstacles ever thrown in the paths of new inventors and highly lauded inventors by grasping capitalists and sold to them.

New York induced her citizens to refuse the request of the sculptor Ward, whose statue is in front of your city hall, defacing his will to Boston (such the Alsatians did. His enemies chose a committee of judges and gave over $50,000,000 worth of harbor property for a song, raised the rates of freight and took $50,000,000 for fifteen years, while New York was building and Boston, instead of being the great port which her position indicated, is helpless in the hands of her rival.

At One-Fourth Present Cost.

"This is no time to despair. A great opportunity is before her people, for here is owned and controlled a system adapted to bring the grain from Canada and the great West at one-fourth the present railway cost; a four-foot speed, with absolute safety; cars fourteen feet in depth, four feet in width, forty feet in length, with eight four-ply bearings on their fifteen-inch wheels, running on the single track, above the ship, will fill the docks at Fast as they are emptied and restore the grain trade of America.

"These single rail passenger cars will, with absolute safety and certainty, at one-fourth the cost to the road, connect Boston with New York in an hour, Chicago in four hours, Denver in ten hours and San Francisco in twenty-four hours and Europe in four days.

"What shall be said of a press that for the favor of the men who own the rail roads are silent as to the fact that $1,000,000 persons are to be maimed or slain each decade, and that a waste from two to three hundred thousand to thousands of millions of dollars is exacted from the helpless people thus robbed and murdered? That great railroad man, Mr. Mellen, says the people are becoming positively dangerous. Not unless you refuse to equip with this system and continue murder and robbery as a pastime. If any one of these Senators who have voted in the interest of a foreign corporation to prevent our using our vested rights will meet me in open debate and give a truthful reason why we should not build we will withdraw.

"Mr. Mellen does not approve, nor does Mr. Gaston, or Mr. Winsor, or Shepard of the Boston Elevated. It is a mistake to destroy our vested rights, for if the people get very angry they may be using it as a precedent to wipe out the vested rights of those who proposed to rob us of our lands, locations, charters and patents. I believe the Senate will do the right thing, after a little more discipline by the House and by their constituents.

Limited New England Distribution by THE COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE of the Great

Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia and Atlas

10 Massive Volumes; 310 Maps; 8000 Illustrations; 150,000 Encyclopedic Subjects; 200,000 Geographical Entries; 300,000 Quotations; 500,000 Encyclopedic Dictionary-Definitions. Size of Volumes 12½x2½ Inches; Weight 75 lbs.

Nearly every one now knows about this great work. Before the beginning of the present remarkable distribution there were already more than 5,000 CENTURY owners in Boston alone, all of whom cheerfully paid the high price—$61 and upward. Heretofore THE CENTURY has always been held at a very high figure. The rich took it quickly; students went without things to own it. These ten volumes, indeed, are an indispensable educational equipment in the home, office or study, for they constitute

The One Supremely Useful General Reference Work

In the regular way of selling THE CENTURY—through book agents to whom big commissions are paid—it would be simply impossible to turn over these ten superb volumes to you on anything like the terms just now available. The present price and terms, indeed, are only made possible through the unusual, but highly successful, National effort the progressive COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE is making to add quickly a large number of desirable new subscribers to its list with THE CENTURY set as a supreme inducement. And it has certainly proved to be a well-nigh compelling offer, for, although THE COSMOPOLITAN only recently secured exclusive control of the entire edition for 1907, thousands of the sets, coupled with a 2-years' COSMOPOLITAN subscription, have already been distributed country-wide. The remainder of the edition has now been allotted to certain special sections where magazine circulation is most valuable, because of quality as well as quantity. That means a generous proportion to Boston and New England, of course, but at the best

The Allotment Is Limited and You Must Act Promptly

If you should ask any one of the 5000 Boston CENTURY owners about the work and the present price and the convenient terms they would advise you not to hesitate. Read what one great convert says. They're famous book printers. They do not print THE CENTURY, but they own the work and use it and praise it most highly. It will prove just as useful to you as to them.

PRAISE FROM MASTER PRINTERS

JOHN WILSON & SON, The University Press, Cambridge: "Our proof-readers find its vocabulary so extensive and rich, its definitions so full and comprehensive, its etymologies so searching and scholarly, its literary illustrations so copious, varied and felicitous, that in not one respect does it fall in their department, but in frequent of use and weight of authority is fast coming to outrank every other work hitherto in vogue with them. The typographical execution of the book is beyond praise, while the presswork is simply perfect."

IMPORTANT GUARANTY

This edition (for 1907) of the Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia and Atlas, manufactured and published by us and just now being distributed by the Cosmopolitan Magazine, is unabridged, contains all the previous editions have contained, is complete in every way and is the latest and only edition published. THE CENTURY CO.

Bear in mind this edition for 1907 is the VERY LATEST; it is UNABRIDGED; in a word, it is the ONLY EDITION now issued by THE CENTURY COMPANY. From a mechanical point of view the volumes are perfection, being fully equal to the high standard of former editions. The work is printed, as always, at the famous De Vinne Press (the standard of excellence the world over), and the binding, as always, is by Tapley—"Tapley bound" means "best bound," as this volume is destined to last a lifetime.

Remember, the number of sets allotted to Boston and New England was originally limited, and these are going very rapidly at the little price and on the convenient terms offered.

Three Easy Ways to Get the Work

(See Paragraph 2 in the Form.)

Third. Those engaged in special professions and occupations—clergymen, educators, physicians, lawyers, architects, engineers, etc.—who feel that they should first know to what extent THE CENTURY will aid them personally in their own field of endeavor, may, until further notice, send the initial dollar, have a full set sent Free on Approval, and be allowed three days in which to examine and test the work as to their own particular needs, with privilege of return and money refunded. ## Common Sense vs. Romance

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man and think a great deal of a young lady, who, I think, cares for me, but the only objection she has to me is she always says I haven't any romance in me, so I thought I would write and ask your advice, as I do not exactly know what she means by romance, and thought if you would be so kind and let me know I would be very thankful to you, as you always give such good advice. I know several young people who took your advice are now married and living very happily. J. W. K.

I CALL that rather a pathetic appeal. The young man has enough romance in him to fall in love, but he evidently falls short of his lady love's ideal of romantic love-making.

The young woman should have lived a few hundred years ago, when knights went a-tilting for their ladies' favors, serenaded them with lackadaisical love sonnets and eloped with them on coal black chargers.

The young men of nowadays may not be romantic, but they are practical, and that is far more satisfactory in the long run, for it means that they are capable of earning comfortable livings for their wives.

Money Necessary

ALL the romance in the world will not be of much comfort if the purse is empty.

Every girl has a strain of romance in her, and even though she knows quite well that her sweetheart loves her she never tires of hearing of his love.

You can ring a hundred changes on the most ordinary of love stories and the average girl wants them all.

But it is too absurd to think of refusing a man on account of his lack of romance, for romance is not the first requisite necessary to married happiness.

Do not confound romance with love. A man may love you very much and yet not have a grain of romance in his make-up. But in spite of his lack of romance he may make an excellent husband.

A man would not be manly if he had as many romantic ideas crowded into his brain as most girls have.

This is an age of great competition in the world and the young men are hard at work carving their fortunes and careers.

Don't Be Romantic

THE average young American makes the best husband in the world. He is sensible, business-like and willing to lead and chivalrous to a degree in his manner toward woman.

Don't get your head filled with foolishly romantic ideas, girls. Learn to recognize what is best and truest in a man.

Very often the man who is apt with poetical quotations and full of flowery allusions and suggestions is not very capable when it comes to the practical side of life. He can make very pretty speeches, but he can't make a good living. And let me tell you that the man who can provide a comfortable, happy home for his wife and children is not to be despised.

Love is necessary to a happy home, but the love that rests on a basis of sound common sense is the most satisfactory kind for every-day life.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT TOO OLD

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl only seventeen years of age. A little over a year ago I met a young man who isn't quite five years my senior. He has very good habits; a steady worker and the whole he seems to possess all the qualities which make an honorable man. My mother thinks that he is much too old for me, and that I am altogether too young to think of any man, and she has forbidden me to see him. He feels very hurt at it, but still thinks my mother is right in her judgment. Would you advise me to give him up entirely or wait until I am of age, or would it be wrong for me to see him once in awhile, as I feel as if I must see him sometime. S. L. H.

YOUR mother is right in one respect. You are too young to marry. But the man is just the right age for you. When you are nineteen he will be twenty-four. Ask your mother if she will allow him to call on you with the understanding that when you are old enough you will become engaged to him.

HIS SHARE OF IT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl and have asked a young gentleman of mine, of same age as myself, to a dance, given by an association of which I am a member. I have bought the admission tickets and is asking him I meant to defray all the necessary expenditures. Should I now allow him to pay for flowers and car fare as he insists upon doing. GWENDOLYN.

IF you provide the tickets you are doing quite enough and it is all right for him to defray the rest of the expenses.

How Closely the Fashions for Girls Follow the Modes of Grown-Ups Is Shown by These

Stylish Hats for Schoolgirls

ON the left is one of the new drooping hats with scarf. The design on the right shows the latest inverted basket shape. The lower picture illustrates the large style of hats, trimmed with net and rosebuds.

Three of the Best Designs for Summer

THESE hats are especially designed to be becoming to the schoolgirl.

Large, floppy brims with draped trimmings are much in evidence.

The first hat is a good example of the scarf trimmed hat. A wide soft ribbon is folded softly around the crown of a drooping fine chip straw.

The centre hat is a pretty one for most young girls. The full ruching is of stiff white net. The little clusters of flowers and tiny rosebuds are fastened in this at intervals all round. This hat is quite unique in style and shape. It may be made of either straw or silk. If silk is used in this model it is laid in pleats, and bound at the edges with a bias fold of velvet. A little band of velvet around the crown is the only trimming on this hat.

FAMOUS WRITERS' FOIBLES

KEATS liked red pepper on his toast.

Dickens was fond of wearing jewelry.

Dandet wore his eyeglasses when asleep.

Edgar Allan Poe took his cat to bed with him, and was inordinately proud of its feet.

Thackeray used to lift his hat whenever he passed the hoods in which he wrote Vanity Fair.

Alexandre Dumas the younger bought a new painting every time he had a new book published.

Robert Louis Stevenson's favorite recreation was playing the flute—as he said, to tune up his ideas.

Robert Browning could not sit still. With constant shuffling of his feet holes were worn in the carpet.

Good Things For Mothers To Know

Woman's Chief Fault

DON'T take a young baby out in a go-cart. They are excellent for children who have passed their second year, and cannot walk far without fatigue, but quite small babies need a perambulator, in which they can, if necessary, lie quite flat and go to sleep.

Don't curl or plait a child's hair very tightly at night. Scanty tresses in later life can very often be traced to the habit of arranging the hair back too tightly in childhood.

Don't put a child to bed longer than four hours without food in the daytime, and something—a drink of hot milk—once a day is quite sufficient for the average child; and, of course, the most provided should be freshly cooked and served with plenty of good, non-baking gravy.

Don't think, because the weather is cold that baby should do without his airing. It is damp—not cold—that will hurt him, and the loss of his daily walk will soon cause the nose to go from his cheeks and make him peevish and ailing. See that day and night nurseries are well aired, and that the windows thrown wide open top and bottom when baby is out of the way. Never shut one of the windows up quite tight. A few inches open at the top will keep the room well ventilated and healthy and the air pure.

Milk, porridge, gravy, vegetables, eggs and bread well buttered are better than much meat for young children.

Don't give a child anything seriously from cold feet, generally due to bad circulation.

When little's the cause a good hot water bottle filled with hot water, but not nearly boiling, should be placed to the cold feet at night for half an hour before baby goes to bed. Rubbing the feet with the palm of the hand and putting on clean, warm socks every other day will also help to promote warmth.

Woman's Curse Is Lack of Backbone

By Dorothy Dix

ONE of the greatest curses in the world is the weak woman—the woman without a backbone.

I am not, thank Heaven, the impious and conceited Frenchman who said that if the Creator had consulted him at the beginning of things he could have prevented some mortifying blunders from having been made. Nevertheless, I often wonder if we would not have been a good many million miles nearer the millennium if it had pleased the Almighty to have made Eve out of Adam's spine instead of his rib.

That started the feminine sex out incompletely equipped, so to speak. It put a handicap upon us we have never been able to fully overcome, for it takes lots more effort for a jellyfish to rouse itself up to do things than it does for a vertebrate animal to pull off achievements.

Backbone Is Bad Form

Worse still, it unfits the possession of a backbone bad form in women—a kind of abnormality that a lady tried to cover up, or disguise, if she had one, and that her friends and family attempted to reduce by the copious application of wet blankets every time it threatened to grow big and strong enough to enable her to stand alone.

Perhaps, considering that the lack of a spine is a constitutional affliction with women, we should not be too hard upon them for being invertebrate. It is more their misfortune than their fault, but none the less it makes them a menace to society, and one of the chief accessories to crime.

It was lack of backbone that made our first mother yield to the first temptation that came her way, and her invertebrate daughters have been following her example ever since.

Mothers, remember that the lack of a backbone is a calamity to bring the blame of it where it belonged—at the door of some silly woman who lacked enough starch in her make-up to live in the station of life she could afford, and to cut her coat according to her cloth.

Women's crimes against their frailties are nearly always the result of weakness, but the effects are not less deadly on that account.

Well might a man paraphrase the old epigram and say that if God will protect him against a spineless wife he will protect himself against the assassin with a backbone like a telegraph post.

For the lackadaisical woman is life millstone about the neck of humanity; the dead weight that drags us all down.

A Danger to Herself

In private life she is a danger to herself and all about her. In public life she is the chief obstructionist to progress because she is all whine and no fight. She yearns for rights she is too timorous to demand. She groans under wrongs she is too weak to right. She shrinks from her best she does not try to sunder. She groans in misery she is too cowardly to rebel against. She bemoans unjust conditions she has not the grit to set right.

The best women are spineless that women all over the civilized world are united in clubs, in social societies, in reform societies and anti-vice societies, praying and marching and organizing, but they could work themselves into one good, strong, backbone that would be the thing to which they are opposed.

But not until in the process of evolution gentle woman grows a backbone will that knockout blow be given, for while women are so timorous as individuals that they lack the ability to stand up and do and dare alone, so long as the cowardice, or that is unplacant. Which is why the best we can do to-day is to seek the powers of evil have no better backer than we have the innumerable lesser tragedies the backboneless woman.

TOMATO SOUP

PLACE in the kettle one-half pint of fresh or canned tomatoes for each person to be served. Add salt and sufficient water to keep from burning. Let the tomatoes boil up, then stir in one scant teaspoon of soda and as the foaming subsides add milk enough to make the desired quantity, a spoonful of butter and a dust of pepper. Serve hot with crackers.

TEDDY'S ORIGINAL CAKE

CREAM together one cup sugar and one-half cup butter. Break into this one egg and beat all together. Sift one cup flour three or four times; the last time add a dessert spoonful of baking powder (heaping) and another egg. Now add a little of the flour and then one cup of milk and a little of the milk, beating each in thoroughly as you use them with the flour. The mixture will look almost like ice cream. Bake in a loaf in a quick oven forty-five minutes in a very moderate oven. This makes delicious and cheap cake and never fails to be good. It is rich. Nice and light. MRS. J. W. CAHNES.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS

One of the greatest curses in the world is the weak woman—the woman without a backbone.

I am not, thank Heaven, the impious and conceited Frenchman who said that if the Creator had consulted him at the beginning of things he could have prevented some mortifying blunders from having been made. Nevertheless, I often wonder if we would not have been a good many million miles nearer the millennium if it had pleased the Almighty to have made Eve out of Adam's spine instead of his rib.

That started the feminine sex out incompletely equipped, so to speak. It put a handicap upon us we have never been able to fully overcome, for it takes lots more effort for a jellyfish to rouse itself up to do things than it does for a vertebrate animal to pull off achievements.

Backbone Is Bad Form

Worse still, it unfits the possession of a backbone bad form in women—a kind of abnormality that a lady tried to cover up, or disguise, if she had one, and that her friends and family attempted to reduce by the copious application of wet blankets every time it threatened to grow big and strong enough to enable her to stand alone.

Perhaps, considering that the lack of a spine is a constitutional affliction with women, we should not be too hard upon them for being invertebrate. It is more their misfortune than their fault, but none the less it makes them a menace to society, and one of the chief accessories to crime.

It was lack of backbone that made our first mother yield to the first temptation that came her way, and her invertebrate daughters have been following her example ever since.

Woman's Chief Fault

It may sound like a sweeping assertion to say that the chief cause of all woman's misfortunes, troubles and sins is her spinelessness, but it is the solemn, rock-bottom truth. Every one who is brought in contact with the women who have gone down and those who know that 90 per cent. of them all fell into evil ways through sheer weakness and flabbiness of character.

They had no particular inward vice; no innate craving for the lurid excitements of the underworld; they were driven on by no ungovernable and resistless passions.

There merely came a day when somebody had to take little Jessie in the right direction, or it was a little easier to do wrong than right, and they followed the line of least resistance.

Poor, Spineless Creatures

They were poor, spineless creatures who were the victims of their own inability to stand alone. They might have been good as easily as they were bad, just as there are lots of thousands of good women who are only good because of their environment. It is useless to be virtuous on five thousand a year in a plush home, and no woman who has not been young and beautiful and cold and hungry in rainy, frosty city streets at an early hour.

Add to these big temptations occasioned by woman's lack of a backbone strong enough to enable her to seek independence rather than ride guiltily in an automobile, and we have the innumerable lesser tragedies the backboneless woman.

KEEPING HOUSEHOLD ACCOUNTS

HAPPY is the housekeeper who receives by a regular allowance, can keep within its bounds and knows exactly what she spends, how she spends it and what she has left over! It is a knotty problem this, and one that has caused more heartburnings between husband and wife than almost any other.

Some women, of course, are born with that inestimable gift, practicality. They calculate without effort the purchasing possibilities of their allowances, and manage to keep up an ample table on a weekly sum that would leave a less capable woman in debt. Other, equally capable, are unable to cope with the easiest sum in arithmetic when it comes to the entry in an account book frightens them.

Between these two extremes comes the great body of housekeepers, who manage to get along fairly well, but who would do very much better if they had a sound business system in regulating their households.

The plan of allowing the wife a definite sum in large as the income will permit, but without extravagance, and the keeping to the law of an itemized book, seems to be the only one that solves the problem.

"THE HERITAGE OF HATE"

By Elizabeth Purcell

Synopsis

CLAUDIA WINGATE'S father dies in Bellevue, accusing himself of the murder. He has just been told of his daughter's engagement to Aubrey Heath, younger son of an English baron, who refused all his life in America, and is heir to Heath Hall. Six weeks later the young couple wed at Bellevue, and Claudia is a bride. Francis Heath is terribly angry at them, and refuses to speak to Claudia, after her two children are born he invites them to visit him in New York. Mysteriously she sickens and dies, and Francis wildly curses Claudia.

Francis and Aubrey quarrel and Francis tells Claudia her husband must leave home and fled from England. Aubrey follows Francis to Paris, and Claudia, in search of her husband, stumbles over something in the dark.

Instead of the damp earth, her fingers encountered a glossy substance that the woman instinctively knew was the white shirt front of a man in evening dress, and a face upward in the path.

With a scream of terror Claudia stumbled to her feet. Her first thought was of her husband, and again she knelt over the body, peering into the face faintly outlined in the feeble light from the house.

Again a shriek of terror reached the inmates of the house as she recognized it as the face of Francis Heath, already cold in death.

The contorted features bore a look of awful horror, and on Claudia's eyes became mesmerized to the uncertain light she could see the fatal dagger was buried to the hilt in his breast.

Almost fainting at the sight, the woman sped dazily on, unheeding, gasping, her whole soul overwhelmed with horror from the sight she had witnessed.

As she reached the entrance the door was opened wide and her husband appeared in the entrance.

CHAPTER XII.

Sister Rachel

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE Visitation Hospital was a large, rambling red brick building, standing back from the street, with a stretch of grass, some beds of early flowers and a row of leafless trees in front of it. A prim looking nurse stood at once of the ivy upper windows with a child in her arms.

"Dr. Musson has just been asking for you, sir," said the hall porter, as Dr. Harding entered the great doorway and removed his hat and overcoat. "He's in the accident ward, sir. There's to be an operation at half-past eleven."

Alfred Harding nodded and then passed along the broad corridor toward the rear of the building. At the end of the corridor he halted at one of the closed doors. He stood waiting and listening for a few moments, but heard no sound of movement within. He was about to enter when the heavy door was silently opened by a tall, spare, middle woman wearing the uniform of a hospital sister.

The woman entered she closed the door again behind him, refusing with a movement of her hand his offer to assist her in the trouble.

Dr. Harding's appearance was familiar to him, and therefore had ceased to impress him, save on the occasions, rare at the hospitals, when he had leisure to observe her and speak a few words with her space.

But any one beholding her for the first time could not fail to be struck by the singular distinction of her face and form and manner. Any one glancing at her closely would have guessed her to be at least forty-four or forty-five years of age, but a clear complexion of the rose and lily that she must be younger than this, and the light in her eyes and her whole bearing her chiefly through sorrow.

It was, perhaps, only the most casual observer, that she must once have been a beautiful woman, for her dark-brown eyes were still very brilliant, and her features were strikingly regular and pure in outline; but the lips that must once have been so soft and crimson and full were thin and tightly set, with strange lines of suffering about them, and the hair, though still of a rich, dark color, was plentifully sprinkled with gray.

Only the pale countenance, as well as her every gesture and movement, breathed of a tragic sorrow, and Harding, as he shook her former life was ever known to escape these lips, and he observed, after greeting her in the usual terms of courtesy, that the sweetness of one whose whole heart and soul were in her present work.

In the Hospital

Alfred Harding greeted her cordially as usual—"Good morning, Sister Rachel." He glanced down at the long ward, where the atmosphere was strongly charged with disinfectants. Two or three medical students were idling there, talking together in low tones. He scanned their faces and then turned again towards the nurse. "I expected to find Dr. Musson here."

"They are waiting for him now," quietly returned Sister Rachel, as she proceeded to roll up a long strip of bandage that she held in her hand. "I thought he would come straight in here, but it seems he has gone from the round of the wards. I hear that this new case is rather a bad one," she added in a lower tone, glancing as she spoke towards the farther end of the ward, where a man lay upon a low cot under the bed, his face averted, and his right arm encircled and bandaged, resting upon his chest. "The poor fellow was brought in late last night with his arm mangled."

Alfred Harding's glance followed hers. "What is the man's name?" he asked. "I believe it is James Higgs," answered the nurse. "He lives in one of those little cottages near the elevated station."

Recognition

"Higgs?" repeated Dr. Harding in surprise. "Why, it must be Nodd's clerk. I am very sorry to hear of this. Do you know how the accident happened?"

Sister Rachel shook her head.

"Dr. Musson will no doubt be able to tell you," she said, indicating a woman who was stooping over the injured man's cot. "She attended to him when he was brought in."

Lightly and silently she then left the ward on her way to her duties in another part of the hospital.

Interested and somewhat anxious, the doctor walked down the long room and learned from the younger nurse how Higgs had met with his accident.

"He was crossing the street near the elevated station," Nurse Mary said, "when an automobile whirled down upon him. He was thrown against a pillar and his arm crushed. He was sent in here by the police."

A Bad Case

"It will not be a case of amputation, I hope?" said Alfred Harding, with a touch of deeper anxiety in his tone.

"I hope not, too," the young nurse answered. "It is true the bones are badly broken, and it will be a long time before the patient is otherwise in good health, but I think that with care and nursing he may not be crippled. Indeed, he has already spoken since he has been in the hospital."

"He is a clerk in the office of Attorney Nodd," explained Alfred Harding boldly. "Mr. Nodd has called to inquire after him at least over the patient's bed."

"I will see that the proceedings now, Mr. Higgs," she said. "The surgeon will be here directly."

REAL GRAND OPERA GETS REMARKABLE DEMONSTRATION

Herr Conried and Herr Hammerstein should have been at the Park Theatre last evening and they would have had their eyes opened as to whether Boston likes real grand opera or not. Notice the accent on he real?

For the first time in many years Boston got real grand opera last night. It was not given by stars of world renown; it had not been heralded for six months in advance by high-salaried brainstormers; it had no immense stage or playhouse; but it was real, genuine, artistically perfect grand opera. And how that audience did shout—loud-clapping was not half expressive enough for it. They recled for more, and they succeeded in getting two entire scenes from the opera—it was Puccini's "La Boheme"—repeated. Think of that! As for curtain calls, it seemed as if they never would end.

But the players deserved all the applause they got. They comprised the San Carlo Opera Company, which for a year has been playing in the South and Middle West, and which, by a sudden shifting of plans, on three days' notice, came to Boston. And they contributed the real artistic success of the season. Herr Conried notwithstanding.

Signor Carlo Nello, graduated from light operatic days, heads the company, and with her is a man who in many ways is the equal of Caruso. He is Senor Constantino, a Spaniard, who is a better actor than Caruso ever was, and who can sing pretty as well. Many people would think that he sings better than Caruso. He has one fault—he flats at the end of some of his sentences. With Miss Nelson, Senor Constantino, Signor Forani, the baritone, and Senor de Segurola, the basso, this San Carlo company can boast of as fine a quartet as ever sang in grand opera. To this is added Miss Foy Iverson, who sang Musetta of last evening—a very clever actress with a remarkable voice.

Despite the fact that there was only three days' notice of their coming, the theatre was nearly all filled, and "society" took hold in very good shape. If said "society" does not stir itself and come out to these remarkable companies it will go far to prove the statement of Herr Conried that "Boston does not appreciate good music." A great deal of the success of the opera was due to Signor Carli, a marvel as a conductor. As soon as the orchestra gets familiar with the size of the theatre it will be less obtrusive.

It is not out of place to repeat this fact—the San Carlo Opera Company is giving the best performance of grand opera Boston has seen for years, and it deserves the remarkable demonstration which a gratified audience gave it last night.

"TIME, PLACE AND GIRL" MAKES GOOD AT TREMONT

"The Time, the Place and the Girl," a musical comedy which has had more than its share of success in Chicago, and which has already been played with success in every part of the country, opened here at the Tremont last night. It there repeated the triumph it has achieved at other times and in other places. As a matter of fact, it filled the theatre not the new piece with enthusiasm that was expressed itself in hearty encores for one song, etcetera for another and other record-threatening feats, and that was so insistent upon interrupting the performance with applause that the performance was dragged out long past its real length.

Arthur Deagon, a roland rapscallion with a subterranean voice, was the chief male figure in the entertainment. Georgia Drew Mendum, a very personable young woman with a smooth and ingratiating style of vocalism, was the leading lady. Miss Mendum her only asset, lauded the feminine contingent. Miss Mendum's contribution was remarkably agile, and disclosed some of the youngest and freshest voices and forms that have appeared hereabouts in musical comedy for some time.

The musical comedy has enough good songs in any one of its three acts to fully supply the average musical piece. "Under My Always Was Mr Jooch Boy," "I Don't Like Your Family," "It's Lonesome This night" and "The Waning Honeymoon" were good for encores—that by the time any of them was finished on the stage most of the encore customers in the audience had secured the words by heart. Aside from the freshness and catchiness of the songs, the unbroken run of the libretto has much to do with the piece's success. The fun is developed by characters as diverse as a rich man's son that is some good and one that is so good, a gambler whose heart is sound and a former house detective who is wicked, the former's sister and an alluring widow, her baby boy, who is as big as she is, and a former's daughter, who is a mile tamer of ninety pounds, and a trained nurse, who is the last word in sophisticated and disingenuous humor. Georgia Drew Mendum's characterization of this part places her within the confines of the real comic performers. Her training must be likely to become a classic in its own way presently.

Harlett Burt, a beauty who can dance, played the widow, and Arthur Mekelby, who is a trifle bigger than a canary bird, was the girl lover whom most of the love making occurred.

FEDERAL RULE IN HUB BUREAU OF CITIZENSHIP

A federal naturalization bureau is soon to be established in Boston, according to advices from Washington today.

The bureau, the work of which will be done with a view of reducing the opportunities for anti-selection frauds, will be in charge of a lawyer of standing who has not yet been selected. He will be in charge of a staff of inspectors.

Similar bureaus will be established by Commissioner Sargent in other cities in New England, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Denver, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle.

Assistant Attorney General Cooley has left Washington for a tour of these cities. He goes to select lawyers whose names will be presented to the President for his approval.

All petitions for naturalization will have to be submitted to a local bureau for action and a system for the purpose of reducing illegal naturalization as much as possible will be perfected.

HOUSE DEMANDS FENDERS ON ALL TROLLEY CARS

Representative Hugh H. O'Rourke of Worcester, who came down to the Legislature this year with two missions to perform, sees the partial fulfilment of one of them in the House vote, 66 to 46, by which the lower branch of the Legislature has substituted for an adverse report from the Committee on Street Railways the O'Rourke bill, ordering, authorizing and instructing the Railroad Commissioners to require the use upon all trolley cars of fenders of the most modern and most approved type.

In his anti-cigarette fight O'Rourke lost through a collision with the rule shutting out bills which measures of a similar nature have previously been rejected.

Calling special attention to the killing of a Cambridge boy on Sunday, Representative O'Rourke told before the House the terrible statistics of the past ten years. Then he blamed the Railroad Commissioners for distortions.

Meyers of Cambridge defended the Railroad Commission.

"Time for immediate action," said Shepherd of Pepperell. "Fifteen years a patient people have been 'waiting,' while this form of murder is on the increase."

TO HOLD BONBON PARTY.

Preparations have been completed for the annual bonbon party of the Young Ladies' Sodality of the Sacred Heart Italian Church, which takes place on Tuesday evening, May 7, in St. John's Hall on Moon street.

DANDY DAISIES WON PRIZE AT HOWARD

Sam Devere's burlesque troupe, known as the Dandy Daisies, won the prize at the Old Howard yesterday. The girls are all "dolly good fellows." The skit called "The Below-Zero Ring" up to the very end is very finish. The Yorke Comedy Four, a quartet that differs from the old-time quartet as does a poplar to a cypress, Henry and Francis in "His First Rehearsal," the Vatmore brothers, grotesque acrobats and dancers, Bostock, Boston boys, and Emelia Benner, the girl with the whanged voice, were all featured. Hill and Hill were booked as the champion contortionists, and they certainly won their title. Others on the bill were Graham and Lang, singers and dancers; Cummings and Knight, and Rowland, the positive juggler. It is continuous vaudeville at the Old Howard.

GRACE FILKINS IN KEITH SHOW

A straight "fake" act gets the biggest hand at Keith's this week. The idea is not new. Two "strong men," Collins and Hart, come out and perform miraculous gymnastic feats. It gradually dawns on the audience that one of the men is made magnifier by means of a wire running from his headgear to the flies above. But the stunts are so snappy and so absurdly funny that the house is kept laughing as it seldom does in these blase times. The act owes its success solely to the fast stage business which is kept going in experi style.

The headliner is Augustus Thomas's play let, "A Proper Impropriety," properly put on by Grace Filkins and James Horne. It concerns a California gentleman who chooses an unconventional method of making a lady's acquaintance and gets away with the goods. Jack Norworth, who has one of these "Now, I'll tell you" style of song and story turns, makes a hit with his "college Songs." He adds a melancholy ditty about "Jim Sorrow-ee," but winds up with "My Honey Boy," in which he jollies the house endlessly.

The Three Rosos are three pretty girls who form a string-instrument trio to advantage. McMahon and Chappelle do a slow-time patter act that brings many laughs and wind up with clever dancing. Tom Edwards, the English ventriloquist, is distinctly good, and Donald Carson, the Scotch pair, have a little more intelligence in their act than is really pleasing, but they sing and dance well. McMahon's Minstrel Maids introduce a "watermelon" feature that is unique and entertaining. The rest of the show is excellent.

COLUMBIA SHOW GOOD FOR MORMONS

If the young women seen on the stage of the Columbia last evening in the travesty of life in Salt Lake City are a sample of the fair sex in that section no one could blame the young men of the West if they all embraced the Mormon faith. Billy Watson gave a pleasant surprise by his superb work as Archibald Goldie in "The Mormons," the opening skit. In the "Bashful Venus" he assumed the role of a German cook. Florence Millership, Lillie Millspaugh, Lew Reynolds, Charles Gracie, Maxie Lamb and Alice Gilbert were also good in evidence. The big laughing hit in the show was supplied by Lew Grand Reynolds. They certainly raised havoc with the big Mormon drama.

BEST BURLESQUE OF SEASON AT PALACE

Better burlesque and vaudeville has not been seen at the Palace this season than The Bowery Burlesquers and the Palace's own company. The burlesquers present "On the Bowery." The Sculptor's Studio," and "The Essex Market Police Court," with Lizzie Preligh and Blanche Davenport, and an excellent company. Specialties are introduced by Ben Jansen, vocalist; the Farrell-Taylor Trio; Carmel in D'Eredere in a Parisian novelty; and Hills and Wilson in a medley. The Palace company includes Devene and Sherry, comedy acrobats; Risteen Brothers, equilibrists; Jones and Jones, colored singers, and Aker, ventriloquist; Wyckoff and Hart, The Bisbee and the Dope Fiend; James Murray, travesty artist, and the Palacescope.

'LITTLEST GIRL' ORPHEUM'S FEATURE

If for just about ten minutes this week one wishes to withdraw himself from the world, to forget the cares of the past, to go to Mary, his agreement concerning the doctor's bill, the record that the Senate making, or anything else—he should drop in at the Orpheum at about the time Lady young Englishman, Rex Fox, comes to sing and dance aboard a sombre black ship. The British performer carries a lay figure on his back over the wire, certainly gaining as he goes along. Again, he walks on his wife on stilts, playing the mandolin, in fact he does all manner of the odd stick wire and the old ventriloquist gags, but always in ways that are remarkably new. Clever Caroline Cook and her associates of the "Mimic Four." Tom Hearn, basso and tenor, than ever as the lazy juggler, the Italian trio of male songsters; Dorsch and Russell, the "musical" tailoresses; Julian Rose; Keno, Welsh and Melrose and Katherine Nelson, a somersaut dis cent, would make up an attractive bill even if there were not the annual offering of the American one-act classic, "The Littlest Girl."

The dramatization of Davis's "Her First Appearance," has never been more effectively played. Charles Miller was "Van Bibber," and Wilmer Walter, the father, who has almost forgotten his little mate. Baby Norris was the "Littlest Girl." And if anybody claims that there's a prettier "little girl" anywhere under the Stars and Stripes he will have to come forward with name, residence and other facts before Orpheum audiences will ever listen to him. It was Baby Norris's first appearance, too. From start to finish it is a splendid bill.

LOCAL STAGE NOTES.

Thursday night is to be military night at the Globe Theatre. John Craig's players are to entertain the militia officers of the State.

At the Majestic Theatre box office tomorrow morning seats will go on sale for the two weeks' engagement of "The Three Twins," including the usual Thursday and Saturday matinees. Walter N. Lawrence brings back from New York scenes direct from his Madison Square Theatre.

"Jenny," the donkey of Roger Brothers' company, has given birth to a daughter. The happy event took place early Monday morning. The little stranger weighs forty eight pounds, and will probably make her stage debut before the night accompanying her mother.

Olga Nethersole's popularity was shown at the Hollis Street Theatre this morning when the sale of seats opened for an engagement next Monday evening. All the desirable seats were sold.

FERN FOSTER'S TESTIMONIAL.

Miss Fern Foster is to have a testimonial concert at Odd Fellows' Hall, Cambridge, tonight. Among those who take part are Harry Bienhan, formerly with the "Sultan of Sulu" company; Ethel Cooke, Carl Gerrold, Eric Ingersoll, Lewis Dranson Whitehouse and Juliet Day, the latter of the Castle Square Company. Miss Foster will take part in a sketch.

PICTURES AT LYRIC.

A variety of new "picture plays," ranging from farce comedy to heavy drama, interspersed with illustrated songs, is the excellent offering at the Lyric this week. Instrumental music is given by the Lyric Orchestra.

"FOR HUMAN LIFE" IS A THRILLER

"For a Human Life," a four-act melodrama from the pen of William T. Keough, met with great applause at its first production last evening at the Grand Opera House. It is a thriller from start to finish. The plot is deep and is carried out in an artistic manner. There are many bank raising scenes, among them being the death of Ingmen, the heroic resene on the incline and the explosion in the shaft. No. 8, and the last appeal to the Governor for the life of Emma Ellis. There is also a great deal of comedy and singing.

BLUE MAN CURIOUS FREAK OF NATURE

The curious anomaly, "The Blue Man of Persia," had called by the thousand yesterday at Austin & Stone's Museum, where he is the big cusino in "Old Trocadero." He is also at times in all most blue-black. Other features this week are Young Sandow and Lambert, in art groupings; Hindoo Sam, East Indian magician; Ben Beno, magician; Ragger and Gilchfeld, the ventriloquist.

In the theatre are the "Minstrel Maids," the Tuscano Sisters, Pezolla and Pantalone, Yeoh Gilbert, Fred Arthur and moving pictures.

SOCIETY OPENS "POPS" SEASON

"Pop Tops" opened last night in Symphony Hall, with an overwhelming audience. T. Adamowski officiated as conductor of the orchestra. The programme was varied and popular. The feature was a concerto to the weather, for it began with the "Parade" march by Richard Strauss, played by the full orchestra, and concluded the "Contes d'Hoffmann" serenade of Offenbach, selections from "Mlle. Modiste," "The Merry Widow" waltzes, "The Red Mill," the overture to "Semiramide" and "Mignon" waltz, the "Bee-bird" waltz and the "Matchiche" march. All the ways nothing if not popular. Tschaikowsky overture, "1812," which the audience "stood up" to applaud.

SHOWER TIN ON JUNE BRIDE-TO-BE

A number of friends called on Miss Marion Yeaton, at her home, No. 26 Newbern street, South Boston, last evening. The nature of their visit was to tender to her a tin shower in honor of approaching June nuptials. Although taken by surprise Miss Waldron responded to their well wishes, and the evening was pleasantly spent.

Miss Nellie Hastry and Miss May Gillen of Florence Ave. were the hostesses. Miss Emily Costain and Miss Katie Sullivan mandolin and guitar solos. Miss Mabel Smith, Miss Sadie Kilduff, Miss May Cameron and Miss Florence Waldron vocal selections, and Miss Violet Barry readings.

To Get More Strength from Your Food.

WHEN the Bowels are filled with undigested food we may be a great deal worse off than if we were half starved.

Because food that stays too long in the Bowels decays there, just as if it stays long in the open air.

Well, when food decays in the Bowels, through delayed and overdue action, what happens?

The millions of little Suction Pumps that line the Bowels and Intestines then draw Poison from the decayed Food, instead of the Nourishment they were intended to draw.

This Poison gets into the blood and, in time, spreads all over the body, unless the Cause of Constipation is promptly removed.

That cause of Constipation is Weak, or Lazy Bowel Muscles.

When your Bowel-Muscles grow flabby they need Exercise to strengthen them, not "Physic" to pamper them.

There's only one kind of Artificial Exercise for the Bowel-Muscles.

Its name is "CASCARETS," and its price is Ten Cents a box.

So, if you want the same natural action that a six mile walk in the country would give you, (without the weariness) take one Cascaret at a time, with intervals between, till you reach the exact condition you desire.

One Cascaret at a time will properly cleanse a foul Breath, or Coated Tongue.

Don't fail to carry the Vest Pocket Cascaret Box with you constantly.

All Druggists sell them—over ten million boxes a year.

Be very careful to get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC."

"The Great Question"

A crowded house greeted Virginia Harned at the Majestic Theatre last night when she entered upon the last week of her engagement in "The Great Question." There will be the usual Thursday and Saturday matinees. "The Great Question" is worthy of note if for no other reason than that it places Folsom's great life work, "Anna Karenina," upon the stage in a form which retains the purity of a great lesson the Russian master intended should be conveyed by that story.

"Rogers Brothers in Ireland"

This is the last week of the engagement of "The Rogers Brothers in Ireland" at the Hollis Street Theatre. Never again will they appear here in this vaudeville farce. Next season another big musical show the production had a large audience last evening. Since the opening it was made a complimentary benefit to the two popular young men in the box office, Timothy T. Fetherston, treasure, and Thomas F. Joyce, ticket agent. The result was that every seat was sold.

"The Spring Chicken"

Richard Carle and "The Spring Chicken" are quite as good as a trip to Paris. Mr. Carle has been having a sort of an "old home fortnight" at the Colonial, and now the best thing will be to make it a complete month. It is not at all strange that New York and Chicago liked him in "The Spring Chicken," for the piece is one of the liveliest and best that he has ever associated his name with.

"Robin Hood"

The popularity of "Robin Hood" at the Castle Square was to be expected, but that the public should flock to see this opera in such numbers as filled the playhouse last week was more than could be expected. But they did, and as a result, the second week of "Robin Hood" began last evening. Its run is, however, limited to this week. Next week Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Gondoliers" will be the bill.

"Heart of Maryland"

John Craig, Mary Young Ben Johnson, Thomas MacLarnie and all the versatile players of John Craig's stock company are repeating their success of last week in "The Heart of Maryland" at the Globe. The sign "Standing Room Only" has been displayed at every performance and the play retains all its famous melodramatic features. "Old Heidelburg" is booked for next week.

Fels-Naptha users can never be induced to use an imitation the second time.

Soaps are like people. They prove themselves worthy or unworthy by their actions. They are judged not by their looks, but what they do—or don't do.

Fels-Naptha soap, for instance, is a cake of stored-up cleansing energy. Yet, so far as looks go, it is no different from ordinary soap. To prove its worth, it must be tested—and tested the right way, according to the simple directions on wrapper.

In cold or lukewarm water, the powerful, wonderful properties of Fels-Naptha soap are unlocked and start working at once, loosening and dissolving dirt and grease. After 30 minutes' soaking, the merest rubbing and rinsing remove these, and the clothes are cleaner, sweeter and whiter than is possible by the hot-water method of washing.

In the old-fashioned way, you do by main strength on the washboard what Fels-Naptha soap does without boiling or scalding. In half the time, too.

Insist on getting the soap in the red and green wrapper. Accept no other.

Fels-Naptha is as far superior to the imitation as gold is to brass.

Anty Drudge's Cure for Washerwoman's Sore Hands

Mrs. Housewother—"My hands are so tender and sore—I just dread wash-day coming. Mrs. Washestoo, next door, says she uses rosewater and glycerine for hers. Guess I'll get some."

Anty Drudge—"Rose water and fiddle sticks! Your sore hands come from washing the old-fashioned way! Use Fels-Naptha soap and save your hands. No scalding water to crack the skin nor hard washboard rubbing to make your knuckles tender."

Special to the Boston American.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—After this afternoon's contest here the Boston Americans will leave for Detroit, where they will open a four-game series Thursday. It will be the first trip West for the Pilgrims, and if they get an even break they will consider that they have done mighty well.

George Winter and Tom Hughes will probably be used on the rubber this afternoon.

President John I Taylor is considering a proposition made by Manager Cantillon of the locals of swapping Southpaw Jesse Tannehill for Jake Stahl. Taylor and "Cub" had a long talk, and the former said that he would make his decision later.

Taylor offered Grimshaw, and he also offered Dinneen for Stahl, but "Cantillon" he didn't want either. In fact, he declared that Jesse Tannehill is the only man that he would take for Stahl.

"Tanny" is the only left-handed twirler on the Pilgrim team, and Taylor is kind of leery of letting him go, for as he is very anxious to get Stahl, the deal may be consummated.

PIRATES HOLD PLAYERS LONG

In speaking of the changes to the Pittsburg team for the past seven seasons, President Dreyfuss says he is perfectly satisfied with the percentage, for no other team in the league has changed anywhere near that number. Take the year 1900 as a basis and what is left of Simply the Pittsburg has Clarke, Wagner, Leach, Leever and Phillippi. New York has only Bowerman that Pittsburg gave it; Philadelphia, Thomas; Boston, Tenney, and Chicago, Chance and Nealon.

Cincinnati nor St. Louis have a player who was with the team in 1902, when the Pittsburg team has one more man on its payroll than the other four teams together. Take Brooklyn: It has not a man who was on the team four years ago, and the same case applies to the American league if one will look the matter up.

BRITONS WILL AID YANKEE TOURISTS

BY J. C. KERRISON.

It will please many who are interested in making the Gold Cup Tour of Europe this Summer to learn from Secretary J. W. Orde of the Royal Automobile Club in Great Britain has practically placed the entire facilities of this splendidly organized club at the disposal of the Gold Cup visitors. He has not only sent to the office of George Lampl, New York city, many kind suggestions and much information regarding motoring conditions abroad, but also maps and guides showing the best possible roads to follow. A number of these maps are quite large and divided into sections, going into minutest details.

A large number of the most reliable garages are indicated and information given regarding certain trips from place to place, as for instance, a trip from Bordeaux to Bayonne, so as to avoid French cobblestone roads, which are very numerous thereabouts. There are three routes which may be taken between these two places alone. Other maps and charts, showing how to avoid pavements in Belgium, will be found most useful. Important data regarding licenses and automobile formalities abroad has been very carefully compiled by Secretary Orde, and the annoying question of fees necessary to obtain these licenses is made clear. In Germany and Italy licenses which are issued to a motorist in any other country are recognized, although fees for the carnet are required. Other countries in Europe do not recognize foreign licenses, and the necessary steps required to obtain permission to drive through the land is explained. There is a great deal of data regarding general road conditions in Europe and what sections of the country are best for motorists to avoid on account of bad highway conditions. Mr. Orde's attitude toward this American tour is most courteous.

This Gold Cup Tour has aroused a great deal of interest among people who are not chronic motorists, but would like to make the trip abroad in this manner. Already enough applications have been received from individuals who are not owners of automobiles to make six good-sized cars when the tour commences. A number of Americans who cannot spare the time to make the complete tour are anxious to avoid the usual nuisance incident to foreign travel, by having all arrangements made for them by the management of the tour. As Mr. Dupuy will be able to furnish a number of cars to non-owners, it is expected that a good many Americans who do not drive automobiles will join this tour, although they do not wish to compete in the contest for the cup.

O'BRIEN AND BURNS WIND UP TRAINING

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, May 7.—The sale of tickets for the "Philadelphia" Jack O'Brien-Tommy Burns heavyweight championship to-morrow night before the Pacific Athletic Club, continues to be heavy, and the indications are that there will not be a vacant seat in the pavilion when the men enter the ring. The betting on the fight has been 10 to 8, with O'Brien favorite, but on the strength of Burns's great workout yesterday O'Brien money went begging, and at a late hour last night Tommy's backers were talking all the even money in sight.

Men Finish Training.

Both men finished their training yesterday and will do practically from now until they enter the ring, nothing except taking light exercise to keep their muscles flexible. Tommy Burns moved up from Long Beach to Naud Junction yesterday, and last evening a great crowd gathered in the pavilion to watch the Canadian work out with his sparring partner. And they were not disappointed.

After four fast rounds with his protege, Jimmy Burns, Tommy stood up and slugged three rounds with Billy Woods, the negro boxer. Burns and Woods went it hot from the call of time, and it was apparent instantly that there was a real fight on. In the second round Burns threw aside all caution and waded into Woods to put him out.

New York Eight Picked for Saturday's Race
COLUMBIA CREW IS FAST

NEW YORK, May 7.—After weeks of shifting, Coach Rice of the Columbia crews has at last settled on a combination which he considers good enough to meet Harvard when the two crews come together Saturday. With one exception the boat is in the same order as that which has been beating the second crew consistently for more than a week. It is made up of Smedley, bow; Jordan, 2; Spaulding, 3; G. Mackenzie, 4; Von Saltza, 5; J. Mackenzie, 6; Boyle, 7; Cerussi, stroke, and Winslow, coxswain. The only change that has been made for a week is the substitution of Jordan for Hardwick at No. 2, which took place last Wednesday.

On the first day the crew went out, despite the fact that the men were new at the oars and the distance that the second boat can be left behind has been gradually increased until now the first varsity can be looked on to win out by three or four lengths over a two-mile course.

Only Two Veterans.

It is a notable fact that as the boat has finally been selected there are only two men in it who were in last year's boat. These are George Mackenzie and Boyle. Boyle is in the same position that he occupied last season, while Mackenzie has been shifted from the position of stroke to 4, where he seems to be settled. Bevan, who rowed bow at Poughkeepsie last June, although he was in the first boat for a time, has finally wound up at the bow position in the second boat. Roy, who was at 2, gave up rowing early in the season, owing to pressure that was brought to bear on him by his parents. Ferris, Earle and O'Loughlin are not back in college.

The greatest loss is that of Heinrich, who was declared ineligible by the athletic committee. He will not give up rowing entirely, but will continue to work in the second boat until the end of the season. By passing his examinations in June he can make himself eligible to row in the Poughkeepsie regatta. As Rice considers that he is one of the best men in the boat the coach will keep him on the squad, in the hope that he will be able to do this.

Rice has adopted for the use of the first crew the new style English oars, which were ordered recently. These oars have a blade which is half an inch narrower than the American style, while the oars are three inches longer. These oars will be used in the Harvard race. The oarsmen complain that with the old style oar they are brought up suddenly on the catch, owing to the broad surface which the blade presents to the water.

Best Columbia Crew.

The general impression is gaining ground among Columbia alumni interested in crew work that the Blue and White aggregation is one of the strongest that has ever represented the Morningside institution.

Rice himself is confident of a fair amount of success. "Of course," he says, "it is asking a good deal of any coach to expect him to put a crew from the bottom to the head of the river in a single year, and we may not succeed in walking away in front of the bunch at Poughkeepsie, but I am confident that we will be heard from on the day of the big regatta."

Although no more changes will be made in the boat before the Harvard race unless one of the men goes "bad," it is by no means likely that the crew as at present made up will be the same as that at Poughkeepsie. Rice considers that there are some men who are good at two miles, but who lack the stamina for a four-mile race, and in making up his Poughkeepsie crew he will put the endurance of the men thoroughly to some form of top speed over a four-mile course. None of the crews to date has gone more than the distance of the Harvard race at top speed.

SEVERANCE MAY NOT ROW RACE FOR HARVARD SATURDAY

Harvard rowing stock has taken a big slump for the race with Columbia on the Charles River Saturday by the announcement that it is not likely that Severance, who has been rowing regularly in the Harvard eight's shell since the crew was called out, may not row owing to troubles with his studies. He and Palmstock of the second crew failed to do well in the April hour examinations, and unless they can bring up their work before Saturday they will be out for good.

Severance did not row in the boat yesterday and Faulkner took his place at No. 3. "Sev" is a little under weight and he was given a layoff.

Owing to the bad weather the crew only went for a paddle.

JAWN O'BRIEN SURELY IS A BRAVE MAN

BY TAD.

"I never saw the man yet that I was afraid of and never will," said Philadelphia Jack O'Brien in Los Angeles the other day when undergoing a cross-examination regarding his battle with Tommy Burns, which takes place this Wednesday evening.

Mr. O'Brien is a very clever gentleman, we all admit that, but at times he tosses the truth about with utter disregard and smiles on merrily, merrily.

Jawn's eyes get weak at times and his sight is not the best. He probably NEVER did see the man he was afraid of, but quite a few spectators have different ideas.

Seems to me that I saw a knock-kneed old fellow, all speckled like a carriage dog, give Jawn an awful lacing at Philadelphia one sunny afternoon. Jawn wasn't a bit afraid, but in the fifth round, when he was feinting at the ropes like a war rag and wearing a blank expression like the prison girls, the copper landed the old fellow away and let Jawn off.

Another colored fellow named Young Peter Jackson dropped Jawn cold in Baltimore one night, but they said it was done in the break, and the Quaker was called the victor.

Umpire—Rigler.

If the weather man is kind this afternoon, and the chances look good at the writing of his article that he will be, the Bostons and the Quakers will wind up their series at the South End grounds.

Last Friday the Dowey were scheduled to play their first game with the Snowtowhees, and it was played all right, but the weather was so cold that the coterie of fans who attended shivered themselves almost to death. The Dowey won, unprotested. Saturday another battle was on the tapis, but Jupiter Pluvius put up the "stop" signal. The same thing happened yesterday.

President George B. Dowey, who is usually of a jovial and tolerating nature, is getting disgusted with the manner in which the storm gods have been treating his team. Not only were his players handed all kinds of bad weather in the South, but just as soon as they struck North for decent warm weather they were treated to some more "lemon" weather. Parrints' Day, which was figured to be a good day for rooting, as the rain on the contest scheduled for the afternoon was postponed, as was also the Saturday game since.

Why, you talk about your hard luck—but what's the use of complaining anyway. Let's look over the score card to-day and see what a corker we have. Irving Young, the clever southpaw member of the South pitching corps, is down to perform, while old Pittenger, the former Boston National pitcher, is slated to take the fire the work for the visiting aggregation.

Lord Jim have been hoping to get a chance to see Billy Murray's (who is a Bay State boy) pets perform, but now did on the opening day, except those who clipped be tied at a $500 diamond, on account of the frigid weather, and since it has rained, or the rain as we put long enough this afternoon to permit a game all of Bill's admirers, and some others, will be out to the fun.

FIRST ROUND PLAYED.

The first round of the Harvard interscholastic tennis tournament was played on the courts at the Harvard Club in a drizzling rain. Only one match of the second round was completed, Dewitt Kaysor of Volkmann beat his schoolmate, W. R. Schrigley, 6—2, 6—2.

Fair Weather Friends

If absolute evidence were required to prove the lasting quality and enduring loyalty of my trade, it has been abundantly offered this season. My customers are not "Fair Weather Friends." With weather conditions most hostile and unfavorable, with other tailors at a standstill, I have broken all high records of the past. This season I have done the business of the town, because in the past I gave the people the values.

The unprecedented rush of last week was inevitable. My Blue Serge Announcement, embodying the greatest offer in modern tailoring, was investigated and accepted. To reduce my immense line of Fancy Blue Serges the offer will continue this week.

Our Railroads Imitate the Czar and His Cossacks Pretty Well

The Organized Dollar Gives a Pretty Fair Imitation of Organized Brutality

We should always remember with gratitude the good features of our blessed land. We should grow enthusiastic at proper intervals (always on July 4) about the freedom of the country and its beautiful government.

But we should not fail to read statistics, OR TO KNOW WHAT REALLY GOES ON AROUND US, or to realize that it is the carefully organized dollar that governs and that ignores in its own interest the laws that control the rest of us.

So much by way of introduction to Accident Bulletin No. 22, just issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission, under date of May 1. This interesting accident bulletin gives to the American people the facts as to the doings of the railroads in killing and maiming during three months.

You know that railroad accidents are due to the fact that men engaged in getting money PUT THE MONEY ABOVE THE LIVES OF HUMAN BEINGS AND SUCCESSFULLY DEFY THE LAW.

When you read the dispatches from Russia and learn that thousands of human beings are killed or injured by the Czar and his brutal Cossacks you sympathize with the Russians, and you OUGHT to sympathize with them.

You also ought to sympathize with the people in THIS country, when you read in this official bulletin of the United States that in three months there were killed or injured by the United States railroads TWENTY THOUSAND NINE HUNDRED AND FORTY-FOUR PASSENGERS AND EMPLOYES.

If that isn't a pretty good imitation of the Czar and his Cossacks, we should like to know what WOULD be called a good imitation.

We don't know just how many Russians were killed, or hit with the knout, or knocked over the head with musket butts during the last three months, but we doubt whether the number of killed or injured by Cossacks in Russia exceeded the American figures of killed or injured by the railways—20,944.

With one exception, the three months' record which the Interstate Commerce Commission has just issued is the worst in the history of the country.

During that time, for instance, eighty-four men were killed coupling and uncoupling cars and engines. THESE MEN WERE KILLED BECAUSE THE RAILROADS REFUSED TO SPEND THE MONEY TO PUT ON SAFETY COUPLERS—refused to comply with the law. If that isn't MURDER, what is it? If that isn't putting the saving of a little cash above the lives of eighty-four men, what is it?

The total number of railroad collisions was TWO THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND TWENTY-SIX.

The number of trains going off the track was ONE THOUSAND SEVEN HUNDRED AND THIRTY-NINE.

These railroad collisions are based on the employment of overworked, tired men, made careless by too long hours, or of sleepy boys in telegraph stations, EMPLOYED TO SAVE MONEY AT THE EXPENSE OF HUMAN LIFE.

Derailments are due to cheap construction—MORE saving of money.

This newspaper doesn't underestimate the important work that railroad builders do. We know that in the rush of American life and enterprise, and the difficulty in finding capital, it is not easy always for the big industrial geniuses to work as well or as thoroughly as they might like to do.

But we do know that every day in the year, and every hour of the day, money kills a certain number of men and women and children in this country. And we know that there ought to be in the United States intelligent, legal, calm organization, AT THE BALLOT BOX, against the crimes of capital, just as there ought to be in Russia organization against the crimes of the Cossacks and their brutal master.

The American who blinds himself to real conditions in this country is a fool, or worse.

The man who is happy if people will simply let him LIVE, happy if he can escape the knout and Siberia, is a pretty weak kind of a sister, almost a mollycoddle. As long as men are governed by dollars their government is a joke—and they are poor jokes, individually and collectively.

A Street Car Baby

By Wex Jones

IT'S just a round bundle of flannels
and lace,
Two fat little feet, pudgy hands
and a face,
And, kicking and rolling, grows bolder
and bolder,
Till it crawls from its mother's embrace to her shoulder.
And thence it surveys all the folks in the car,
And crows as if pleased with all things as they are.
It chuckles and gurgles and smiles in a way
That means, "All you kind people, I bid you good-day."
Then mothers observe it, and say it's well grown,
But of course not a patch on the kids of their own;
While a schoolgirl examines the shapeless wee boot
And declares that the darling's too awfully cute;
And the crusty old bachelors look up from their papers
With a half-frowning smile at the baby kid's capers.
Half afraid if they catch those round eyes of deep blue
The fat little baggage will gurgle, "Pop-goo."
And then as the bundle of coolings and charms
Is borne from the car in its mother's proud arms,
A fatherly man says, "Your boy is a pearl,"
And coldly the mother replies, "She's a girl."

Little Editorials from the People

ADVOCATES WORRYING

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

A man who has succeeded in living to a ripe old age recently took the public into his confidence and told how it was done. (This, by the way, seems to be a favorite pastime of the very old.) His rules for health include at least two that are worthy of attention. One is: "Don't eat too much. Two meals a day are enough for anybody." The other is: "Don't worry." Both are very good rules, but what I fail to understand is how it is possible to avoid worrying when it is becoming more and more difficult to earn the price of one meal a day, to say nothing of two or three. However, I suppose we ought to be thankful that the old gentleman did not recommend six meals a day. At the risk of being thought eccentric, I would recommend plenty of worry as a remedy for the evil conditions that surround us. If all of us would only worry hard enough and then supplement our worrying by intelligent work along lines calculated to better existing conditions, we might make it easier, if not for ourselves, at least for future generations, to get along without worrying. WARREN H. MARVIN.

ONLY A DREAM

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In the Republic of Equal Rights (I don't know where it is, but it ought to be everywhere) all lawyers are employed by the State at fixed salaries, which are increased according to length of service. No lawyer is allowed to accept fees for any service except for drawing up legal papers, and in such cases the fees are turned over to the State. When a man is accused of crime, he is entitled to the services of any lawyer he may select, excepting only the prosecuting attorney, who has been appointed by the State to serve a given number of years. If expert testimony is required on any subject, the experts, too, receive their pay from the State only. In order to give expert testimony, a man must qualify before a State Board of Examiners. There may be some flaws in this plan, but it seems to have the advantage of making the poor man and the rich man equal in the eyes of the law. M. W. THORPE.

The Wreck of the Mosquitoquong

By James J. Montague

THE ferryboat Mosquitoquong was ploughing through the fog
With Captain Job McGonigle
a-heaving of the log.
The wind was off the forad peak, the crew was off their dip
And all the passengers they wished that they was off the ship.
For ocean liners, tugs and scows was everywhere around,
And all the helmsman did was swear
and steer the boat by sound.
But Captain Job McGonigle he had no
thought of fear,
And when the dangers multiplied, he simply said, "Oh, dear!"

"OH, Captain, my Captain!" the bo'n loudly swore,
"I fear we ne'er shall see again that
dear East Boston shore!
A hole is in the bo'ard bow, a bloomin' oyster junk
Has rammed us in the stabboard wheel,
an' we shall soon be sunk!
A derrick's loomin' through the haze,
and when she hauls an' tacks
She'll scrape off all the passengers an'
motor cars an' stacks!"
A shadow of annoyance crossed the Captain's bow-bung jaw,
He looked a trifle discomposed and softly whispered, "Pshaw!"

"OH, Captain, my Captain!" a deckhand hoarsely bawled,
"A battleship is bearin' down, an' both the wheels is stalled!
The deckhouse has gone overboard,
the craft is scuttled flat,
The rudder's floatin' downstream; a private yacht got that!
We're foul of two torpedo boats an'
half a dozen sloops!
A merchantman just hove us down an'
spilled them chicken coops!
Those passengers a-swimmin' home is gettin' kind o' mad.
They say they'll have you bounced for this!" said Captain Job, "Too bad!"

"OH, Captain, my Captain!" the engineer exclaimed,
"This here's a sad catastrophe for which you may be blamed!
The hold is nearly level full, the seams is opened wide——"
He ceased, for the Mosquitoquong had sunk beneath the tide.
The wavelets circled round about her
watery resting place,
An' then there was of ferryboat nor hide, nor hair, nor trace,
But bubbling from beneath the waves
these words rose like a knell
From Captain Job McGonigle: "My!
my! Dear! dear! Well! well!"

CARPET sweepers are somewhat clumsy to use as hair brushes.

To shine your shoes easily, give a bootblack 10 cents.

Potatoes should always be boiled in boiling water.

Rice pudding is eaten by some people.

Goldfish, to be served as trout, must be carefully palmied.

She Warns Mothers That Thoughtlessness Is Often a Cause of Great Suffering to Children

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

IN the London Mail appears the following:

Writing from the Mansion House, the Lord Mayor describes the latest charitable project to be launched from that historic centre of benevolence:

"At the Fishmongers' Hall it was my privilege to announce that I had decided to raise a Mansion House Fund of £300,000 to be expended in the establishment of a specialized institution for the relief of the crippled children of the metropolis.

"It was my pride also to state that I have reason to believe that the scheme, which has been drawn up with the advice of experts, is one which meets with the approval of His Majesty the King.

"For many years, as you are aware, I have been brought closely into contact with the 7,000 little sufferers, the crippled children of the London poor, and it is because so many friends have helped me annually to brighten their little lives somewhat that I have been encouraged to think I might successfully set on foot an important movement which is intended to do them permanent instead of merely temporary good.

"The scheme provides that the crippled child shall, whenever possible, be provided with a training to fit it to become, if possible, a wage-earner.

"Every child thus assisted will be the means of helping the struggling family to which the cripple would otherwise be a life-long burden.

Mothers Need Teaching

IT is a lovely charity, this solicitude for the crippled children of the world, and it touches all hearts.

But in every part of the world, wherever my wanderings have led me, I see the need of a society to teach mothers how to care for their own children.

In Paris, as in New York, and every other spot in America which I have seen, mothers drag their helpless children of three, four, five years of age along the street at a rapid pace, unconscious that the poor baby's arm is stretched to an unnatural position, and that the clubby legs are unable to keep up the pace set by a thoughtless parent without exhaustion to the small body.

I have heard a crying child roundly scolded on the street by a nervous mother, who exclaimed, "Well, you cried till I got you out, and now you are crying to go back home. You are a naughty, unreasonable child, and you shall never come with mamma again."

The child was simply exhausted with the rapid pace it had been obliged to maintain, and its arm was aching from being half pulled from the socket.

Criminal Thoughtlessness

OH, the stupid ignorance, the criminal thoughtlessness, of mothers.

Over and over, and everywhere, I see the helpless baby in the perambulator or "go cart" lying with blinking eyes, unshaded from the glaring sun, while the mother or nurse stares in at shop windows or at passersby.

Many times I have protested, and received angry glances or rebuffs from the selfishly ignorant parent, who felt I was offensively officious.

But when babies or animals are suffering from the thoughtlessness or cruelty of their owners it is the business of every human being to interfere and attempt protection.

If the owner of the helpless object is made to think just once on his or her responsibility, something is accomplished.

Don'ts for Parents

A HUNDRED times in this column it has been suggested that the greatest need of the world to-day is a college for the training of parents. And only when a man and woman hold a certificate of graduation from this college should they be allowed to secure a marriage license.

Meanwhile, you who have not passed through such training, and yet to whom God has entrusted children, remember this.

Do not drag your children through the streets at a pace too rapid for them. Do not let the sun pour down on their tender unprotected eyes. Try and think of these two things until your mind is fitted to learn more useful truths which will fit you to be good parents.
